Witness Before Dies Committee Hunted by Cops

William C. McCuiston of Frederick Wanted in New Orleans

BY E. C. DANIEL

Washington, Oct. 30 (P)—A hard-handed seaman with a heroic tattoo spread-eagled across his chest, departed from the Dies Committee witness chair today just before detectives began a quest for him in connection with an inquiry into a New Orleans killing.

Having appeared before the committee in his working clothes to challenge Joseph Curran's recent denials of Communist influence in the National Maritime Union (N.M.U.), William C. McCuiston stepped from the House office building, hailed a taxi cab and vanished in the rain.

Wanted in New Orleans
A short while later, New Orleans police asked Washington police to detain "William C. McCuiston" in the investigation of the fatal shooting of William Carey September 17, at New Orleans, Chief of Detectives John Groesch told reporters.

The man wanted was a Dies Committee witness, McCuiston was the day's only witness. He gave his name as "McCuiston," and a committee attaché said that spelling appeared on medals which the witness owned.

Before the brawny Texan, now a resident of Frederick, Md., left the witness chair, there were rumors that police were searching for him. No attempt was made to arrest him, however, and Acting Chairman Starnes (D-Ala.) of the Dies Committee said McCuiston was due to continue his testimony tomorrow.

Describing himself as a former N.M.U. member and former minor Communist official, McCuiston told the committee:

British Warships Are Attacked by German Bombers

Ships Are Undamaged and Planes Are Believed Safe

By J. C. STARK

London, Oct. 30 (P)—A battle between two German bombers and a flotilla of British destroyers off the Dogger bank in the North Sea today was reported by the admiralty. The announcement said there were no casualties on any of the British warships and that none of the vessels was damaged in the exchange of fire. It was not known whether the Germans suffered any casualties.

The North Sea engagement came shortly after the first German air raid over England since the war's start was sighted on the northeast coast. Aerial fighters went aloft but it escaped, the air ministry said, before contact could be made. No bombs were dropped.

Previous German flights were directed at the Fifth of Forth in Scotland and the Scapa Flow naval base in the Orkney Islands.

False Warnings Sounded
Air raid warnings sounded in London today for the first time since the first week of the war, but it developed they were sounded by mistake.

British fighter planes also went up today to investigate the presence of an unidentified aircraft off the Essex coast. Alarms were sounded in the East Kent area and the all-clear signal was given about ten minutes later.

Announcement was made today that three British ships, the Lynx, St. Nidan and the Malabar and the Norwegian vessel Varangmalm were sunk over the weekend "by enemy action."

The government tonight indicated in a "white paper" that was not "the slightest prospect of reaching any settlement" with Nazi Germany.

British Position Stated
The position was given in a long statement dealing with German concentration camps which presented a collection of affidavits, most of which were from British consular officials in Germany, which the government contended showed Nazi "savagery" in "the treatment of German nationals in Germany, 1938-1939."

"These documents were not written for publication," the white paper said, "and, indeed, as long as there was the slightest prospect of reaching any settlement with the German government it would have been wrong to do anything to embitter relations between the two countries."

"Even after the outbreak of war his majesty's government felt reluctant to take action which might have the effect of inspiring hatred. 'Floggings' in Camps

Hoffman Asks FDR To Quit Playing Politics And Work on Problems
Washington, Oct. 30 (P)—Representative Hoffman (R-Mich.) said today that President Roosevelt should "quit playing politics," deny that he seeks a third term and turn his efforts toward "a sensible solution" of domestic problems.

He placed in the Congressional record a report from the navy department that a labor strike had delayed delivery of airplane parts from the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation, Detroit, and a statement of his own which said that Mr. Roosevelt "may be commander of the navy but the CIO gives the orders."

"I am not criticizing the navy," Hoffman's statement added, "for the commander-in-chief of the navy, the president of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt is responsible for this situation, which he made possible by his coddling of John L. Lewis of the CIO and his tacit acceptance of the support for a third term of the Communists, headed by Earl Browder."

Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison recently wrote Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Naval Committee that the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union had refused to permit a navy man to go through a picket line and pick up government-owned parts.

City of Flint on Way South after Stop in Norway

Warship Escorts American Freighter Out of Port of Tromsøe

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 30 (P)—

The captive American freighter City of Flint, which the Germans are trying to slip through the British blockade, proceeded on her dangerous southward way tonight after being escorted from Norwegian waters by a Norwegian warship.

Aboard were both her German prize crew and her American crew. Reports from Tromsøe, in northwestern Norway, that the freighter had called at that port today, were confirmed by the German consul there, when he was reached by telephone.

He said he had gone aboard but he declined to give further information.

Other Details Lacking
Other details of the captive freighter's dangerous voyage through war-time waters were difficult to obtain because of Norwegian government regulations against disclosing the positions of ships at sea during war time.

However, it was learned she had put in at the port at 1 p. m. (7 a. m. E. S. T.) and departed three hours later, escorted outside Norway's territorial waters by a Norwegian warship.

The early approach of nightfall in this northern latitude at this season favored the German prize crew in its efforts to take the American vessel into a German port for disposition of its cargo, alleged to contain contraband.

It was already dark when she sailed at 4 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T.), and she had many hours of darkness ahead.

The reports from Tromsøe provided the first clue to the vessels progress since Saturday night when official Russian sources said she had sailed from Murmansk, the Russian port in the Arctic.

"Determined not to endanger the southward progress of their prize, German officials in Berlin maintained silence on the City of Flint and her attempt to dodge the British blockade."

"Until the ship docks, Berlin officials declared, 'there will be no information about this ship.'"

(In London, naval experts said nature would handicap the British navy in attempting to intercept the City of Flint. They pointed out the Germans could sail her down the coast of Norway in territorial waters to prevent the British fleet from stepping in.)

500 Miles from Murmansk
Tromsøe, in northern Norway, is about 500 miles from Murmansk, which is above the Arctic circle and more than 800 miles from Hamburg.

The Norwegian government's regulation against disclosing positions of ships at sea during war time precluded definite information from Norway on the vessel's progress.

The reported call at Tromsøe was the second time in ten days that she had visited that port.

It was on Oct. 20 that the City of Flint, under her German prize crew of eighteen port aboard by the German pocket battleship Deutschland, arrived at Tromsøe to land thirty-eight seamen from two sunken British freighters.

The forty-two American sailors comprising her crew still were aboard when she sailed northward from Tromsøe on Oct. 21. She departed at order of Norwegian officials, arrived at Murmansk the next night and remained there until, it was reported, Saturday night.

CIO Leader Against Holding of "Progressive Conference"

Washington, Oct. 30 (P)—John L. Lewis tonight announced his opposition to a western "progressive conference" which he said two government officials were organizing for the "secret" purpose of launching a third term boom for President Roosevelt.

In a letter to Governor Culbert L. Olson of California, he made known that Labor's Non-Partisan League, which he heads, had instructed its units to have nothing to do with the conference.

Among the reasons for this stand, he cited what he termed "the secret plans to use the conference to launch a third term boom."

Other reasons, he said, were the fact that labor has not been given the privilege of suggesting a "legitimate program" for the conference, and the "slight" to Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), and "other great liberals of the west who have not been consulted and who are slated to be excluded from the conference."

He said the activities of the two government officials in trying to organize the meeting were "questionable" under the Hatch act, which was designed to curb political activity by government employees.

He named the officials as Norman N. Littell, assistant to Attorney General Murphy, and Marshall E. Dimock, second assistant secretary of labor.

Plan To Speed Up Vote on Embargo Backed by House

After an Hour's Debate Today Measure Will Go to Conference

Washington, Oct. 30 (P)—While a leader of the embargo bloc cried "gag rule," plans to speed the administration's neutrality bill through the House in short order were approved today by a majority of the House Rules Committee.

Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.), opponent of the administration measure, especially of its proposal to repeal the arms embargo, contended the procedure adopted would deprive the House of its right to alter the form in which the measure came from the senate. But Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) denied Fish's "gag" charges, arguing that the bill would be treated in the normal way.

Under the procedure, which is subject to an hour's debate and a vote in the House tomorrow, the bill would be sent to a joint House-Senate conference committee for adjustment of differences between it and the measure which the House passed earlier this year.

The most important difference is that the House bill would retain a modified ban against supplying Belgium with arms.

Oyster Dredging to Start Wednesday with Favorable Prospects

Crisfield, Md., Oct. 30 (P)—A spirit of optimism—unusual among Maryland oystermen in late years—prevailed this seafood capital's waterfront today as bay captains wound up plans for the opening of the dredging season Wednesday.

Tongers are bringing in daily reports of catches ranging from fifteen to thirty bushels and the market took on a more hopeful outlook as prices went up five cents to fifty cents a bushel. Demand for the bivalves was increasingly active, observers reported.

Last year at this time, oystermen were faced with a glutted market and prices so low many refused even to take their boats out. The 1938 demand picked up somewhat for the Thanksgiving trade, but lagged quickly.

Fifth Corps Area To Be Motorized

Columbus, O., Oct. 30 (P)—There was glumness tonight among "mule skinner" of the Fifth Corps area.

Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, commandant, ordered machine gun, howitzer and headquarters companies to turn in their horses and mules as a step toward complete motorization of the units, which he said would speed up tactical movements from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 miles an hour.

Says She Spent 6 Days Hiding in a Cornfield; Seems Hungry and Upset

Superintendent Says She Appeared Voluntarily in His Office, but Attendants Say They Caught Her Fleeing from Building on the Hospital Grounds; Wears No Shoes

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30 (P)—Winnie Ruth Judd, mad killer, half-starved and emotionally upset after six days of freedom from the Arizona State Hospital, burglarized a home on the institution's grounds tonight to obtain food and was caught before she could flee.

The trunk murderer, who killed her two best friends in 1931, apparently had been hiding in the vicinity of Phoenix since she slipped out of the hospital last Tuesday night, paid a fifteen-minute visit to the bedside of her ill father, and vanished into the darkness.

Dr. Louis J. Saxe, superintendent of the hospital, said Mrs. Judd was hysterical. A sedative was administered and she was put to bed, under guard.

"Under no circumstances will she be disturbed tonight," Saxe said.

Cought by Attendants

Hospital attendants caught the insane murderer as she fled from the home of Mel Larson, hospital engineer, on the grounds.

She had stuffed several cans of soup, spaghetti, bread and a jar of jelly into a pillow case. She also obtained two pairs of shoes and some hosiery from the home.

Dr. Saxe said she told him she had been hiding in a corn field near the home of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell.

"Well, here I am," she said to Dr. Saxe when ushered into his presence.

After she had been questioned as to her whereabouts the last six days, she remarked:

"I'm telling you a lot and you're telling me nothing."

Visited Minister
Sheriff Lon Jordan reported that he learned today Mrs. Judd, slayer of Agnes Ann Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies she dismembered and shipped to Los Angeles in trunks, visited three hours last night with a minister in Tempe, about ten miles east of here.

Jordan earlier in the day had disclosed that someone telephoned him at 3 a. m. to say he had found Mrs. Judd and was in the act of delivering her to the hospital when she jumped from the automobile and made her getaway.

Sheriff's deputies had searched underbrush, orange groves, fields and vacant houses in the vicinity of the hospital grounds throughout the day.

Dr. Saxe said he started to question her about how she had lived and what she had eaten during her absence, but "decided she was too excited."

Shows Agitation
"She became very agitated and waved her arms wildly when asked how she had lived," Dr. Saxe said.

The old corn field where Mrs. Judd said she had been hiding is part of the hospital grounds, about one and one-half miles northeast of the hospital buildings.

Dr. Saxe quoted her as saying she had seen "horrible things" in her absence.

She wore no shoes, had on an old brown coat, and a drab blue hat pulled down over her ears. It was not known where she obtained the clothing nor what became of the new dress and shoes which an attendant said she was wearing when she fled the hospital, nor the light coat her parents said she wore when she slipped into their humble home from a back alley.

Some of Clothes Found
It was disclosed that some of her effects had been found on the (Continued on Page Two)

Peruvian Aviators Overdue in 4,014 Non-Stop Flight to Lima

Lima, Peru, Oct. 30 (P)—Hope for the successful completion of an attempted non-stop flight from New York to Lima by two Peruvian brothers was abandoned by Lima airport officials tonight as the fliers' fuel supply deadline passed without word of their landing.

The aviators, Commander Humberto Gallino, of the Peruvian navy, and Capt. Victor Gallino, of the Peruvian army, took off from Floyd Bennett field in New York at 1:43 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday and had expected to reach here at 3:43 p. m. today.

Their 1,150-gallon fuel supply was expected to last a maximum of thirty hours. This limit was passed at 7:43 p. m. Several hours after that there had been no word of the aviators since their craft was reported sighted over Miami, Fla. at 10:58 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday.

It was taken for granted the aviators had failed in their non-stop attempt, although it was pointed out that they may have been forced down temporarily at some-out-of-the-way point along the 4,014-mile route.

As night fell, a large crowd which had awaited at the Lima airport for hours, grew silent and increasingly anxious.

The airport was lighted in case the pair should arrive, and wireless operators were ordered to remain on duty until 10 p. m.

At about 7:30 p. m. the airport crowd began to disperse. Among those leaving silently were the mother and two sisters of the fliers.

Housekeeping Magazine Faces Charges Before Trade Commission

New York, Oct. 30 (P)—With an odororous Polish ham as "exhibit 82," the Federal Trade Commission began today a series of hearings on its complaint charging Hearst Magazines, Inc., publisher of the magazine "Good Housekeeping," with unfair trade practices.

The complaint is based upon the magazine's issuance of certain guarantees of products it advertises and "seals of approval" through the Good Housekeeping Institute and the Good Housekeeping Bureau after tests in mechanical departments and laboratories maintained by the magazine.

The commission has alleged that the general guaranty covering advertised products "is not in all instances the result of a scientific test of a product, but frequently is based upon general investigation thereof by a staff member."

James L. Fort, attorney for the commission, offered the Polish ham along with exhibits of many other food articles, and while saying that the ham had not borne a "seal of approval" he asserted it had been advertised in the magazine.

With his pencil he compressed the tin, and the hiss of escaping gases followed. Examiner Charles F. Diggs wrinkled his nose and ordered the ham taken from the room. Then he allowed it to be accepted in evidence.

Miss Elizabeth Mohler, a department store employee, testified that purchasers had returned "two out of every three" of a certain make of washing machines which bore seals of approval of the magazine.

She gave "mechanical defects" as the reason.

The commission seeks to restrain the magazine from issuing guaranties to products which in the government's view have not been adequately tested.

Germany Complains U. S. Siding with the Allies In City of Flint Case

Semi-Official Statement
Points Out that Nothing Is Said about British Seizure of Ships

HELD AS SABOTEUR

Joseph Demers, Jr.

Berlin, Oct. 30 (P)—Criticism of the United States for a "two-fold yardstick" policy in connection with the European war was voiced today by the German foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz.

The semi-official commentary cited as "symptoms" the case of the City of Flint, American freighter now held by a German prize crew, and the "differentiating treatment" of armed commercial ships and U-boats by President Roosevelt, with its "dangerous obliteration of the character of war and trade ships."

(President Roosevelt at a press conference on Oct. 20 when asked about the possibility of extending to surface vessels of belligerent European nations the restrictions he imposed by proclamation on the use of American ports and territorial waters by their submarines, said he did not think the two were analogous.)

The foreign office commentary said the manner of the "snatching up" of the City of Flint affair "points to the fact that responsible officials in America are permitting the case to be pressed more and more into a fixed direction."

Claims U. S. Partial

"It hardly corresponds," the mouthpiece continued, "to the spirit of impartiality if on the one hand 'a case' is to be constructed for a definite actual purpose at the expense of all possible propaganda methods out of a prize affair which was carried out orderly with strict consideration for the men and goods and which is to be objectively settled before a German prize court."

"When, however, on the other hand numerous American ships are brought in and subjected to criminal search, such disturbances do not appear worth mentioning because it is English action."

Korrespondenz pointed to recent speeches by President Roosevelt and Secretary of War Woodring in which they said the United States was determined to keep out of war and the U. S. Senate's action in approving repeal of the embargo act.

Refers to Joy in London

From the joy which prevailed in England and France it must be assumed, the commentary added, "that at least in the eyes of the western powers those assurances of the president and his war ministers were not to be taken so seriously after all."

"The lifting of the arms embargo," the commentary said, "alone could justify such enthusiasm if it was not imputed at the same time that this was only the first stage."

"Even if the attack on the Athenais did not immediately lead to the desired goal, there remained—especially since all American doors stand open for English propaganda—all ways enough other possibilities to induce the desired second step and, if still necessary, the third step."

Recalls FDR's Statement

Korrespondenz recalled President Roosevelt's statement at Chautauqua, N. N., on August 4, 1936, that it was a "tragic series of small decisions" which led to the United States' entry into the World War.

As the commentary's views were made public, Germans were discussing the brevity of the high command's war bulletins and a lull in Nazi diplomatic action.

Today's morning communique.

Last year at this time, oystermen were faced with a glutted market and prices so low many refused even to take their boats out. The 1938 demand picked up somewhat for the Thanksgiving trade, but lagged quickly.

Fifth Corps Area To Be Motorized

Columbus, O., Oct. 30 (P)—There was glumness tonight among "mule skinner" of the Fifth Corps area, U. S. army.

Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, commandant, ordered machine gun, howitzer and headquarters companies to turn in their horses and mules as a step toward complete motorization of the units which he said would speed up tactical movements from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 miles an hour

Says She Spent 6 Days Hiding in a Cornfield; Seems Hungry and Upset

Superintendent Says She Appeared Voluntarily in His Office, but Attendants Say They Caught Her Fleeing from Building on the Hospital Grounds; Wears No Shoes

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30 (P)—Winnie Ruth Judd, mad killer, half-starved and emotionally upset after six days of freedom from the Arizona State Hospital, burglarized a home on the institution's grounds tonight to obtain food and was caught before she could flee.

The trunk murderer, who killed her two best friends in 1931, apparently had been hiding in the vicinity of Phoenix since she slipped out of the hospital last Tuesday night, paid a fifteen-minute visit to the bedside of her ill father, and vanished into the darkness.

Dr. Louis J. Saxe, superintendent of the hospital, said Mrs. Judd was hysterical. A sedative was administered and she was put to bed, under guard.

"Under no circumstances will she be disturbed tonight," Saxe said.

Caught by Attendants

Hospital attendants caught the insane murderer as she fled from the home of Mel Larson, hospital engineer, on the grounds.

She had stuffed several cans of soup, spaghetti, bread and a jar of jelly into a pillow case. She also obtained two pairs of shoes and some hosiery from the home.

Dr. Saxe said she told him she had been hiding in a corn field near the home of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell.

"Well, here I am," she said to Dr. Saxe when ushered into his presence.

After she had been questioned as to her whereabouts the last six days, she remarked:

"I'm telling you a lot and you're telling me nothing."

Visited Minister

Sheriff Lon Jordan reported that he learned today Mrs. Judd, slayer of Agnes Ann Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies she dismembered and shipped to Los Angeles in trunks, visited three hours last night with a minister in Tempe, about ten miles east of here.

Jordan earlier in the day had disclosed that someone telephoned him at 3 a. m. to say he had found Mrs. Judd and was in the act of delivering her to the hospital when she jumped from the automobile and made her getaway.

Sheriff's deputies had searched underbrush, orange groves, fields and vacant houses in the vicinity of the hospital grounds throughout the day.

Dr. Saxe said he started to question her about how she had lived, but what she had eaten during her absence, but "decided she was too excited."

Shows Agitation

"She became very agitated and waved her arms wildly when asked how she had lived," Dr. Saxe said.

The old corn field where Mrs. Judd said she had been hiding is about one-half mile northeast of the hospital buildings.

Dr. Saxe quoted her as saying she had seen "horrible things" in her absence.

She wore no shoes, had on an old brown coat, and a drab blue hat pulled down over her ears. It was not known where she obtained the clothing nor what became of the new dress and shoes which an attendant said she was wearing when she fled the hospital, nor the light coat her parents said she wore when she slipped into their humble home from a back alley.

Rumania Refuses To Cede Soil To Appease Bulgars

Officials Reiterate They Will Span Russian Proposals

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Bucharest, Oct. 30 (P)—Rumanian officials reiterated tonight that they would refuse flatly to cede an inch of soil to Bulgaria who is reported to have Soviet Russian support for return of the Dobruja territory.

At the same time it was learned authoritatively that should Russia decide to occupy the Rumanian province of Bessarabia, she probably would meet little opposition because of the strategic disposition of Rumanian forces.

Although it was admitted here that a "symbolic" territorial concession to Bulgaria in Dobruja could be made with material loss, the concern is that such a step might be taken by Rumania's neighbors as a sign that the country was crumbling.

Acquired After War

The Dobruja, a 9,000-square mile area, was attached to Rumania after the World War. Transylvania was acquired from Hungary who has never given up hope of getting it back. Russia never has recognized the sovereignty of Rumania over Bessarabia.

Bessarabia is now devoid of Rumanian armed forces except for cavalry and small motorized units which, it was expected, would fall back quickly in the event of invasion.

The government has set about attempting to improve relations with Bulgaria, without making any territorial concessions—admittedly extremely difficult.

Rumania's ace diplomat, Vasile Stoica, ambassador to Turkey is scheduled to leave for Sofia tomorrow on a special mission.

Peruvian Aiators Overdue in 4,014 Non-Stop Flight to Lima

Lima, Peru, Oct. 30 (P)—Hope for the successful completion of an attempted non-stop flight from New York to Lima by two Peruvian brothers was abandoned by Lima airport officials tonight as the fliers' fuel supply deadline passed without word of their landing.

The aviators, Commander Humberto Gallino of the Peruvian navy, and Capt. Victor Gallino of the Peruvian army, took off from Floyd Bennett field in New York at 1:43 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday and had expected to reach here at 3:43 p. m. today.

Their 1,150-gallon fuel supply was expected to last a maximum of thirty hours. This limit was passed at 7:43 p. m. Several hours afterward there had been no word of the airmen since their craft was reported sighted over Miami, Fla. at 10:38 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday.

It was taken for granted the airmen had failed in their non-stop attempt, although it was pointed out that they may have been forced down temporarily at some out-of-the-way point along the 4,014-mile route.

As night fell, a large crowd which had waited at the Lima airport for hours, grew silent and increasingly anxious.

The airport was lighted in case the pair should arrive, and wireless operators were ordered to remain on duty until 10 p. m.

At about 7:30 p. m. the airport crowd began to disperse. Among those leaving silently were the mother and two sisters of the fliers.

Germany Believed Still Trying To Start Peace Move

Lack of Aggressiveness Is Said To Be for No Other Reason

By KIRK L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The continued "all quiet reports from the west front of Europe's unhurried war create an impression that the Nazi leadership still is hoping to mobilize world sentiment behind a "peace offensive."

Bad weather may, of course, have much to do with the almost somnolent state of the war ashore. However, the prospect of even worse fighting conditions for months to come, as winter sets in, would argue that a German attack must be delivered without delay, if it is to come at all this year. And the weather man can have little to do with the fact that preliminary German air thrusts at British naval bases have not been followed up by more intensive efforts.

Against this background, extraordinary interest will center on the meeting of the Soviet supreme council in Moscow tomorrow.

Russo-German cooperation in the partition of Poland has made nominally neutral Russia as eager for a peace settlement on a Hitler basis as Germany. The council is assembling to ratify return of White Russia and Western Ukraine to the USSR. They were Moscow's share of the spoliation of Poland.

There is some expectation that a new statement of Soviet policy may be forthcoming, possibly backed by a further hint of Russo-German military cooperation if London and Paris insist on return of Poland to her pre-war status as their essential peace requirement.

It seems more probable, however, in view of the indicated unwillingness of the Franco-British Allies to take any step that might draw Russia into the war, that the Moscow meeting may produce some offer of mediation between Germany and her enemies.

And it may be for that development, worked out in the "consultations" between Berlin and Moscow, that the German leadership is waiting. Such a theory would explain the lull on the battle fronts.

Start New Probe of White Hall Robbery

Baltimore, Oct. 30 (AP)—Baltimore county police started their investigation of Saturday's White Hall bank robbery all over again tonight after a suspect, who had been picked out of a lineup as one of the bandits, established an alibi and was released.

The suspect, a former convict employed at an aircraft factory near Middle River, Md., was tentatively identified by William P. Wright, cashier of the bank, and Percy Tyson, a customer, police said.

The bank was held up Saturday morning and Wright and Mrs. Lida Slade, teller, locked in a vault. Two men escaped with $500.

Agents with arms, whereas the Senate proposal would wipe out the present embargo.

Hot words were exchanged freely at the rules committee's session when Sabath observed at one point that the German capture of the American steamer City of Flint would not have occurred had shipping restrictions in the Senate bill been on the statute books. Representative Cox (D-Ga.) commented: "There is being prosecuted in this country right now a campaign to carry us into war. The seizure of the City of Flint has been seized upon by those conducting the campaign to stimulate a war spirit. Nothing has been said about the seizure of twenty-six of our ships by Great Britain."

Although supporting the procedure proposed by administration forces for consideration of the legislation, Cox said he was "not at all happy about it" because it would "impinge" upon the opportunity of House members to make important changes.

Hope To Adjourn This Week

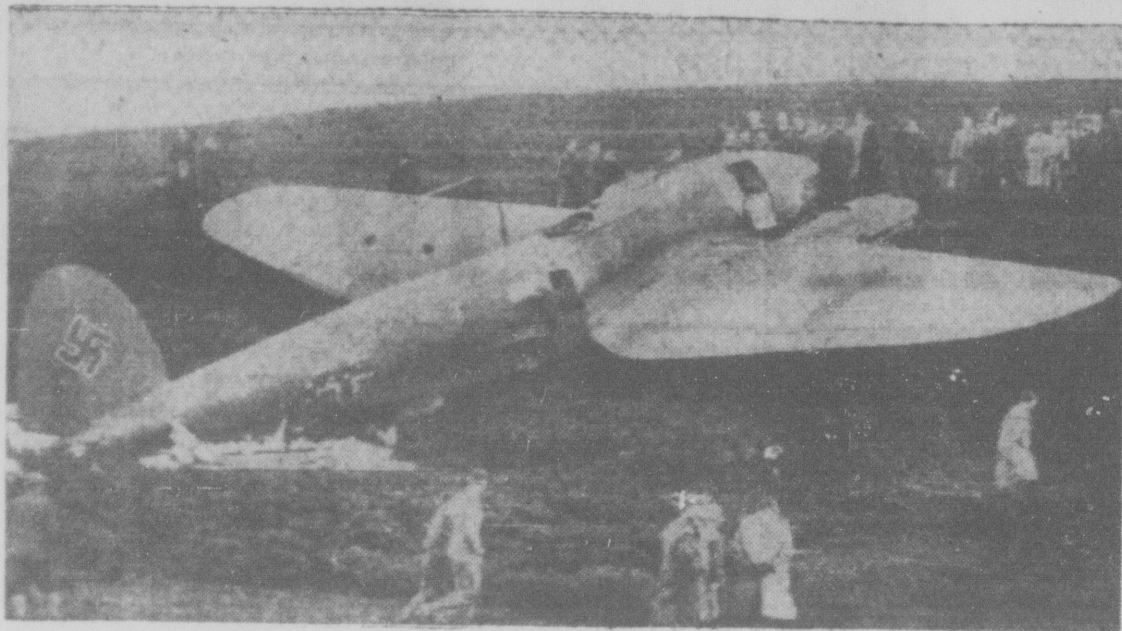

House leaders hoped that the conference committee would get the bill in time to agree on the form of the legislation, obtain House and Senate ratification of that draft and permit Congress to go home before the coming weekend.

Speaker Bankhead announced that the House representative on the conference committee would be Chairman Bloom (D-NY) and Representatives Luther A. Johnson (D-Texas), Kee (D-WVa.), Fish and Eaton (R-Md.), the top-ranking members of the House Foreign Affairs committee.

Fish protested during the rules committee's session that the legislation would be written by a "packed" group of conferees. Cox objected to so strong a word and suggested that it had just happened that the majority of those who ordinarily would be appointed conferees favored the administration's bill.

Declaring he had seen more blood shed by a couple of bulls on the range than has been spilled so far in the European conflict, representative Forlun (R-Wyo.) added: "There isn't any war over there. I think there is every logical reason that they are waiting on us. Why can't we wait them? If we can bring in a dilatory rule, keep the debate going indefinitely, perhaps we can avoid war."

NAZI PLANE SHOT DOWN OVER SCOTLAND

Four British planes shot down the big German warplane shown in this radiophoto, flashed from London to New York, after a thrilling battle over Humble, near Edinburgh, Scotland. Two gunners were found dead in their seats. A third man suffered two bullet wounds. The pilot, uninjured, after being forced down, taxied across the field in an attempt to take off again and escape, but crashed into a stone wall. A second plane, of the reconnaissance type, was driven off.

Ruby Keeler Asks Court for Divorce

Actress Charges Minstrel Man with Extreme Cruelty

Los Angeles Oct. 30 (AP)—Ruby Keeler filed suit today for a divorce from Al Jolson.

She made only one charge, namely, extreme cruelty. Her complaint, filed in Superior Court, said a property settlement had been made out of court.

The Jolsones were married at Port Chester, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1928.

Ruby former actress and dancing star, asks custody of their adopted son, Al Jr., who is four years and eight months old.

Jolson himself announced their separation last week, saying Miss Keeler had gone to live with her mother because of differences between them.

He said that he hoped for a reconciliation, but the next day Ruby indicated that she would divorce Al. The minstrel man is 53 and this was his third marriage. Ruby, whose marriage to Jolson was her first, is 29.

In the property settlement, Jolson agreed to give Ruby $400 a week for life, establish a $100,000 trust fund for the baby and pay Ruby a lump $50,000 if she remarried.

Pittsburgh Steel Hangs Up Record

Monessen, Pa., Oct. 30 (AP)—Production of the Pittsburgh Steel Company is at "an all-time peak" President Henry A. Roemer reported today, with much new business from South America since the war began.

Meeting in Monessen for the first time in the plant's history, the board of directors were told by Roemer that the company was "not producing any war material" at either its Monessen or Allentown plants.

A backlog of orders sufficient to insure capacity production "for months" was cited by Roemer as the chief reason the plant was operating at about ninety-four per cent of capacity.

During the last three years, he said, the company spent $4,000,000 for modernization and $10,000,000 for maintenance and repairs.

The present payroll has 6,000 employees—about 4,000 at Monessen and 2,000 at Allentown.

Controlled Federal Relief

That Communists, through the Marine Workers Industrial Union, described as a predecessor of the NAWU, controlled federal relief to unemployed seamen in Baltimore in late 1933 and early 1934.

That Harry Bridges, CIO maritime leader on the west coast, was a Communist—an allegation which McCusick said he had made to immigration officials investigating Bridges' political affiliations.

That the Standard Oil Company had employed a Communist, Hoyt Haddock, once president of the American Radio Telegraphers Association, as a personnel officer to maintain contacts with marine unions.

A gray-bodied man with thinning, graying russet hair, owlish spectacles, a mustache and a great gap in his front teeth, McCusick appeared before the committee in dungarees, black flannel shirt and green lumber-jacket. He spoke in flawless grammar, his voice sounding like a foghorn.

He informed the committee that Joseph Curran, who testified Saturday, was known across the seven seas as "no coffee time Joe," because he never gave his men on shipboard the usual fifteen minutes, morning and afternoon, for coffee. Curran also is known as "bucko" because strictly a company man," McCusick said.

attitude expressed in the letter, sending word to reporters that it spoke for itself. Persons close to him expressed the opinion, however, that it should not be taken to mean that Lewis was irrevocably opposed to a third term for Mr. Roosevelt.

They said they thought, Lewis was determined that labor be given a full voice in determining the platform and stand of any political group desiring its support.

"In other words, labor is not going to be a tail to anybody's kite," one close friend of the CIO chief-tan said.

The Lewis letter to Olson follows:

Lewis's Letter to Olson

"During our personal conference in San Francisco on October 15, we discussed the proposed conference of progressive leaders of eleven western states, then being organized by Mr. Norman N. Little, assistant to the attorney general in charge of the lands division, department of justice, and Mr. Marshall E. Dimock, second assistant secretary of the department of labor. You will recall that we were in substantial agreement that these gentlemen were pursuing an unwise course by their secret methods of organization and their exclusion of labor participation.

"Since our conference, Messrs. Little and Dimock have continued their work in secret and are prepared to issue the call and assemble the conference for some date in January, in Salt Lake City or some other convenient city. The secret agenda for the conference has been completed and the organizers of conference are awaiting disposition of the neutrality bill by Congress before the issuance of their public call.

"Labor's Non-Partisan League is opposed to the holding of this conference for the following reasons:

A. The source of its conception and the surreptitious manner in which its organizers have worked.

B. The doubtful source of its finances. An anonymous individual in California is counted upon to provide a plentitude of money.

C. The questionable legality under the Hatch act of the activities of Little and Dimock.

D. The slight to Senator Burton K. Wheeler and other great Liberals in the west who have not been consulted and who are slated to be excluded from the conference.

E. The exclusion of labor from the privilege of making suggestions for a legislative program.

F. The secret plans to use the conference to launch a third-term boom.

"I doubt that the president has knowledge of or would approve the plans of these overzealous individuals responsible for this program. Aside from his recent public utterances, his rebuke to Secretary Wallace through a White House secretary, Stephen Early, should carry conviction.

"You are advised that Labor's Non-Partisan League has issued instructions to its various chairmen in the eleven affected states to refrain from any participation in the proposed conference, if later called to assemble in Salt Lake City or elsewhere."

Trade Agreements To Be Taken to Court

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—A Supreme Court test of the constitutionality of the reciprocal trade agreements act appeared tonight to be in prospect.

Governor William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island, challenging the constitutionality of the act, indicated he would seek such a test, and Henry P. Grady, assistant secretary of state, made known that the state department had no objection to any "proper and appropriate legal proceedings."

The trade agreements act was passed in 1934 for three years and renewed in 1937 for three more years and expires in June, 1940. Some twenty-one trade agreements have been negotiated under it with twenty countries, and six more agreements are under negotiation.

The crux of the dispute between Grady and Vanderbilt is whether or not executive agreements such as trade agreements require Senate ratification, as is the case with treaties with foreign powers.

Dancer Held on Espionage Charge

Attractive Woman Is Spy, Switzerland Police Declare

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR.

Geneva, Oct. 30 (AP)—An attractive dancer known in continental night clubs as "Nina" was called to a secret session of Federal Court today to defend herself against charges of treason and espionage and it was reported she had refused to answer questions.

"Nina," whose name is Virginia Capri, was on trial with two men and another woman in Switzerland's first major spy trial since the European war began.

Only meager details of the trial seeped through the locked doors of the courtroom where the accused, guarded by police, faced five Swiss federal judges.

It was stated officially, however, that her handsome Swiss friend, Roger Joel, one-time draftsman in an arms factory, was accused by the prosecution of making models of secret Swiss anti-aircraft gun designs and other arms for the dancer.

"Nina," modishly dressed in black and wearing a leopard skin coat, sat unmoved and silent while being questioned, it was reported. Sources said the thirty-five-year old dancer displayed no emotion.

Miss Rota and Joel each face a possible sentence of from three to twenty years in prison on the double count of espionage and treason.

The other defendants, Paul Rhotat and his wife, were charged with organizing an information service for an Italian consul general in Switzerland under the dancer's orders.

"Nina," and Joel were arrested, Swiss secret police declared, as they attempted to cross into France with plans for the anti-aircraft gun and other military data.

Submarines Sink Five Merchantmen

Oslo, Oct. 30 (AP)—At least three German submarines were reported to have attacked a convoy of twenty-four merchantmen which left Gibraltar Oct. 14, sinking five of them, the crew of the Swedish vessel Bardaland said on arrival here today.

The Bardaland in two rescues took aboard sixty-one members of the crew of the Glasgow steamer Clan Chisholm which gave a report of the attack. The Chisholm crew men, who were landed at Kirkwall, said they were unable to give the names of the other ships sunk or how many were lost.

The Bardaland reported the vessels left Gibraltar accompanied by British warships which returned to Gibraltar after twenty-four hours. The merchantmen were attacked the next day.

(Previous reports from Gibraltar said four ships were sunk near Gibraltar—the Ledbury, 3,528 tons; the Meini Ridge, 2,474 tons; the Taina, 4,413 tons and the Clan Chisholm, 7,256 tons.)

The Bardaland rescued a Clan Chisholm life boat Oct. 20, 300 miles northeast of Cape Sinitierie in a rough sea. Five Englishmen and nineteen Indians had been in the boat for three days.

Later the same day, the Bardaland picked up another Clan Chisholm lifeboat containing thirty-seven men. These survivors said that four lifeboats in all left the Clan Chisholm.

Family of Mice Is Found 'In the Money'

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 30 (AP)—Workmen re-modeling the home of Walker Inman found a family of mice literally "in the money" in one of the walls.

The rodents were snugly bedded down in a nest of much-chewed dollar bills. The currency was of the old, large size and Inman has no idea when or how the mice got their expensive bedding.

Germany Assessed 50 Millions for Two Explosions

But Only $26,000,000 Will Be Available for Claimants

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—Germany was formally assessed $50,000,000 damages today for the tremendous explosions at Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., during the World War, but the 153 claimants to whom the awards were made had little prospect of getting any more than $26,000,000.

The awards, made by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts as umpire of a German-American mixed claims commission, were preceded by a sharp international exchange in which Reich representatives charged Roberts with "bias" and Secretary of State Hull accused the Germans of trying to "frustrate" settlement of the case.

While the commission had found that the explosions were caused by Imperial German sabotage, the German representatives denied this, stayed away from today's proceedings and served notice that the awards "can never form the basis for a financial obligation of Germany."

Therefore, it appeared likely that the claimants would get only the $26,000,000 which Germany had already deposited with the United States treasury to meet an award. These funds will be pro-rated among the claimants.

The largest single award was $9,900,322 to the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The agency of Canada Car and Foundry Company received $5,871,105 and the Bethlehem Steel Company $1,886,491. Most of the other awards, which were smaller, went to insurance companies. In view of the German position, the possibility was foreseen that the Reich might sue to recover any money paid out on the claims.

German Bonds Worthless

Besides the $26,000,000 the treasury also holds $820,000,000 of repurchase of Germany bonds, but these are considered virtually worthless as a security for a judgment.

The Germans also had boycotted a session last June 15 when the commission formally found the Imperial German government responsible for the explosion of 2,000,000 pounds of munitions at the mammoth Black Tom Island freight terminal near Jersey City July 30, 1916, and a fire that blew up a half million three-inch shells at Kingsland January 11, 1917—while the United States still was neutral.

last summer with a pretty Illinois girl who refused to marry him.

Pletch was held in the new Macon county jail, guarded by a special detail of officers because of reported threats of "revenge" at Bivens' home town.

Mrs. Etta Bivens, widow of the flier, pleaded with citizens not to think about mob violence.

Action by officers handling the case indicated they discounted Pletch's signed confession that he shot Bivens in self defense during a struggle when the Brookfield man "backed out" of a plot to steal the borrowed ship.

Questioned Three Hours

Moody and members of the State Highway Police questioned the confessed slayer for three hours this afternoon but declined to comment on whether he changed his amazing story of the sky tragedy.

One Linn county authority said he was "convinced" that Bivens, a popular flying instructor and mechanic, had nothing to do with the plot and was killed when he attempted to land the ship.

A coroner's open verdict was returned today at Cherry Box, a small Northeast Missouri town, near where Bivens' body was found about the same time Pletch was arrested after a forced landing near Bloomington, Ind., Saturday night.

The jury found that Bivens was shot to death "by some person unknown." Pletch was not present at the hearing.

Government Wants To Know More of Kuhn and Bund

U. S. Officials To Probe Alleged Connections with Radicals

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—The federal government, which only a week ago had Earl Browder, the national Communist leader indicted for passport fraud, has begun an investigation of Fritz Kuhn and the pro-Nazi German-American Bund heads.

This was confirmed today by U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill, who would say only that allegations "of a very serious nature" were involved.

Kuhn already is under state indictment obtained by Thomas E. Dewey, the New York county district attorney, charging the theft of $14,800 of the bund's money, and the news that the stout bundman now is involved as well in a federal inquiry was met by his lawyer, Peter L. F. Sabbatino, with the declaration that it was a "witch hunt" brought about in "a struggle for glory between attorneys."

Browder's counsel raised a similar statement when the Communist leader was accused of having made false representations in obtaining and using a passport.

The first disclosure that Cahill had begun action against Kuhn was made in a series of unsigned telegrams received at various newspaper offices. Exhibiting anger, Cahill denounced these anonymous messages as an attempt to thwart or hamper the grand jury and asked the federal bureau of investigation to find out who had sent them.

Meanwhile, one of those questioned during the day before the grand jury was James Wheeler-Hill, Kuhn's right-hand man as secretary of the bund. Because of his presumed reluctance to answer some of the questions put, he was taken before Judge William Bondy and told to give the answers.

Says She Spent

grounds between 2 and 4:30 p. m. today.

Dr. Saxe's version of her capture or surrender differed from that told by attendants who said they helped "herd" her into the hospital.

The superintendent said she appeared voluntarily at the door of the ward and knocked. Two attendants, he said, ushered her to the administration building and into his office. He said she was sitting in his office when he first saw her.

"I promised to come back and I did," Dr. Saxe quoted her as saying. Dr. Saxe and Governor Jones had assured the press and Mrs. Judd's parents no effort would be made to have her declared sane and executed if she would return, or if she were captured.

Both declared the insane Mrs. Judd, known as the "Blonde Tigress" because of her many tantrums during her murder trial in 1932, was growing "gradually worse" in recent months.

Gone Nearly a Week

Mrs. Judd fled the hospital late last Tuesday night, went to the home of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, where she spent about fifteen minutes, then vanished into the darkness.

She left a letter addressed to Gov. Bob Jones in which she said she had been "persecuted" by hospital authorities and was leaving only to see her parents and her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd. She promised to return if the governor would see that Dr. Saxe "leaves me alone."

Dr. Judd came to Phoenix from a California veterans hospital where he has been a patient in an effort to contact the slayer of two youthful nurses. He was unsuccessful, however, and returned to Los Angeles today.

The blonde killer, saved from the gallows by being declared insane, was reported seen first in California, then in Texas.

Today Sheriff Lon Jordan said that a man claiming to be a friend of the mad killer had telephoned his office and said he had taken Mrs. Judd into custody and that she had jumped from his automobile as he was returning her to the hospital.

E. W. Roach, chief deputy sheriff, reported the telephone caller said Mrs. Judd had been hiding in a citrus grove and came to his home when she became "lonely and hungry."

Eight years ago Mrs. Judd killed Agnes Ann Lerol and Hedvig Samuelson, youthful nurses, cut up their bodies and shipped them in trunks to Los Angeles, where the murderess was captured.

Brother Glad Winnie Is Back in Hospital

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—Burton McKinnell, brother of Winnie Ruth Judd, said "I'm glad she's back—I'm glad she's not at large" when he learned tonight she had returned to the Arizona State Hospital.

Obviously shaken by the news, he added in a low voice: "This means that any efforts toward gaining her freedom will be made in a legal way instead of illegally. I think it's high time to wage such a mental battle x x x if she committed no crime the state of Arizona has no further business with Winnie Ruth Judd in a criminal way."

McKinnell is a government employee.

ANGERS DIES

Joseph Curran

Head of the National Maritime Union, Joseph Curran was understood to have muttered, "What a circus" after an argument with the chairman while testifying before the Dies Committee in Washington.

Dies retorted, "You'll have some respect for this congressional committee or you'll be cited for contempt." Curran denied his union harbored Communists and said he wouldn't know a Red if he saw one.

The general staff announced officially that France had lost merchant ships totalling 41,000 tons to German undersea and surface raiders during the first three months of the war.

Captured Four Ships

During the same period, the communiqué added "we captured four ships, one of which, the German freighter Hallie was sunk by her crew. Three others of a total of 19,000 tons are being made use of by us. Since hostilities began our merchant fleet has therefore been reduced 22,000 tons or about one percent of the total seagoing tonnage."

Military dispatches said French scouting parties, taking advantage of the first clear skies in several weeks, began today a series of cautious exploratory operations before the heavy German line between Saarbrücken and Zweibrücken.

Results remained a military secret, although commentators in Paris asserted the parties returned with valuable information on the strength of the German concentrations.

Dispatches said there was no actual fighting. Forces on both sides of the front, they said, were busy repairing damage done by days of snow, rain and sleet.

The high command's morning communiqué said several German raids were repulsed.

French said the high command might attempt to cross the front with a large scale offensive. They said, however, that several days of dry weather were needed to harden the soaked ground and make large scale operations possible.

Climate Change Seen As Benefit For Sinus Ills

There Is None, However,
Where Affliction
Does Not Exist

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
What climates will prevent sinus disease? Now that winter is coming on, the question is important.

There is no ideal climate where sinus disease does not exist. Any change in climate is likely to benefit a sufferer, for a while. Thus, those who live in the mountains may do better for a while at the seashore, and the seashore dweller is improved by high altitude. Wherever there is plenty of ultra-violet radiation is a good climate for sinus, and in children such radiation cleans up small residual infections.

During the winter the best climate for the patient with sinus disease is a warm climate with moderate changes and a minimum amount of rainfall: desert regions—Arizona, Texas, New Mexico or California.

For the best results the change should be continued a long time. It is foolish to expect a radical improvement in a patient with chronic sinus disease in a month's sojourn. The more chronic the case, the longer the stay should be. Disappointing recurrence may follow an early return to the patient's native city. When improvement in a certain climate has occurred one year, plans should be made for a return a second year, especially in children, because the colds of childhood may interrupt the natural anatomical development of the nasal sinuses.

What effect does milk have on the teeth?

The teeth need calcium. According to Dr. Dorothea F. Radtch, of Minneapolis, "unless the diet includes a point of milk each day, or its equivalent in cheese, it is almost impossible to satisfy the calcium requirements of the body. Adults commonly omit milk, believing they can meet requirements with fruit and vegetables. Butter, although a milk product, contains no calcium, whereas it takes one and one-half cups of 20 per cent coffee cream to equal the calcium in one cup of milk."

FACES DEPORTATION

Mrs. Erich Maria Remarque, 46, wife of the author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," faced deportation at Ellis Island, New York, after inquiry board ordered her excluded. Her husband is in Hollywood. Authorities said there was question as to validity of her passport.

ing pimples on the face, is particularly a disease of young people at the age of puberty. It is doubly cruel in this respect because just when romance begins to blossom, the pimples also blossom.

The cause of acne is not easy to state—many factors enter into the picture. The pimples occur usually at the site of the opening of the oil glands in the skin. The oil tube gets plugged, the secretions are dammed back and infection is then easily added.

An oily condition of the skin, disturbance of the ductless glands at this age period, perhaps errors in diet, all contribute to the production of acne.

Success has followed the use of pituitary, thyroid and other glandular extracts.

Former Banker Dies

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 30 (P)—The body of E. Frank Beall, 60, former Morgantown banker connected with the State Public Assistance Department the last two years, was taken to Davistown, Pa., for burial. He died Sunday after two-weeks' illness.

National Guard To Drill Extra Week

Baltimore, Oct. 30. (P)—Major General Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland, said today he would meet with other military officials in the state tomorrow to work out plans for the extra week's training for the national guard, ordered by Secretary of War Harry Woodring.

On Nov. 5 the first regiment will go to Camp Ritchie, near the Pennsylvania border in Western Maryland. Capt. Vaughn T. Gray commanding officer of Company I announced the plan at first regiment headquarters at Salisbury.

Other units, infantry and artillery are not prepared for training and will be unable to use Camp Ritchie because of severe weather there. General Reckord said if suitable housing arrangements could be made the rest of the guard would drill at Camp Meade.

General Reckord said Maryland guardsmen will be permitted to drill for a full week or space it over three weekends if business duties required it.

Army drills, now held 1½ hours each week, will be doubled under Woodring's orders.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 20 (P)—Patrolman Robert S. Stum has been appointed Police Chief succeeding William H. Schill, the city council announced.

Climate Change Seen As Benefit For Sinus Ills

There Is None, However,
Where Affliction
Does Not Exist

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
What climates will prevent sinus disease? Now that winter is coming on, the question is important.

There is no ideal climate where sinus disease does not exist. Any change in climate is likely to benefit a sinus sufferer, for a while. Thus, those who live in the mountains may do better for a while at the seashore, and the seashore dweller is improved by high altitude. Wherever there is plenty of ultra-violet radiation is a good climate for sinus, and in children such radiation cleans up small residual infections.

During the winter the best climate for the patient with sinus disease is a warm climate with moderate changes and a minimum amount of rainfall: desert regions—Arizona, Texas, New Mexico or California.

The Ghosts' Own Night

HALLOWEEN, according to old tradition, is the one night of the year when supernatural influences most prevail.

Children born on October 31 were once supposed to have some weird power of conversing with ghostly visitants. The ancient Druids of England, Ireland and France were said to believe that the wicked souls which had been condemned to death to enter the bodies of animals, were called together at Halloween by the Lord of Death.

Up to a somewhat recent date in Great Britain, superstitious fires were built by many families on Halloween. Each member of the family would throw a white stone into the ashes. In the morning they tried to find these stones again. If any stone was missing, it was believed the owner of it would die within a year.

The modern world, instead of believing too many foolish things, goes to the opposite extreme and refuses to believe many things that are true. From a day of fearful questioning of the unseen world, Halloween has become an occasion for children's tricks and stratagems, and an excuse for general lawlessness.

One hundred years ago, if you found your refuse barrel tipped over, it would have been said that some evil minded ghost had done it. But on October 31, 1939, you can guess it was simply the kids of the neighborhood. For several weeks they have been surveying the opportunities which your home place offers for mischief.

Where is the "Fakery?"

OTHER NEWSPAPERS, as well as the News, are noting a reaction to President Roosevelt's declaration that those who happen to criticize his foreign policy are perpetrating "one of the worst fakes in current history."

The Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer, for example, wants to know where the fakery is about it. It refers to several circumstances as refuting any notion of fakery in such criticism. Included are the open declaration of administrationists that our policy must be changed in order to aid one side in a foreign war; the warning that unless we help bring about the defeat of one side we will have an enemy to deal with ourselves on this continent in a few years; the exhibition by the president of a complete absence of neutrality. In such circumstances, the Intelligencer cannot see any fakery in saying that such a leader and such policy are dangerous in a time like this.

Since the president has raised the issue, the Intelligencer thinks it pertinent to ask a few questions in the interest of public enlightenment.

"If it is a 'shameless and dishonest fake' to suggest that by following the president's leadership we might find ourselves walking into war, what may we inquire, did Mr. Roosevelt mean by his famous Chicago quarantine speech?" it asks.

"If there is no danger of American involvement in war through the application of Roosevelt doctrine, what did Mr. Roosevelt mean by his guarantee of Canadian protection?"

"Finally, if our frontier is in France," as we learned following the now celebrated conference between the president and the Foreign Relations committee, how may we ask, does Mr. Roosevelt propose defending this frontier save by sending American soldiers abroad?"

"This newspaper has nowhere heard it suggested that Mr. Roosevelt WANTS to go to war. For one, The Intelligencer is convinced that he is entirely sincere in the expressed hope that we will stay out of war. But it is equally convinced that Mr. Roosevelt's policies are dangerous policies and that dangerous policies may get us into war. By his own admission the president is not neutral. He believes in employing every method short of war to help those whose cause or whose philosophy of government we favor. Frankly, we are fearful of such doctrine. We simply don't believe that there are any measures of assistance short of war which still are neutral. Nor do we believe that if a country is not neutral it is safe from war.

"In other words, we hold that a leader known to be neutral is a safer pilot along the road of peace than one known to be unneutral; that a policy clearly neutral in itself is safer than one which admittedly will aid one side and which confessedly is advanced for that very purpose."

The Intelligencer seems quite in order in asking that if there is anything in the nature of a "fake" about all this, it would like to have it pointed out.

Pecans Grow in Favor

IN SPITE of the war, there will be plenty of nuts to crack in the United States this year. There was a time when we gathered millions of pounds of chestnuts in this country, but the blight has cut a wide swath. In the Appalachian region alone thirty million acres where the chestnut trees once flourished show only the dead trunks as a reminder of other days.

The chestnut has an appeal of its own, but the pecan has been growing year by year in popular favor and this season we are told the crop will not be less than sixty-one million pounds, as against less than fifty million pounds last year.

Comparatively low prices are predicted and for this the large crop is only half the explanation. California walnut growers have already established their prices at two cents a pound below last year and since the tonnage of English walnuts doubles that of the pecan, it has an influence on the price.

Almonds have been on the toboggan in public taste since 1919 and now rank 14th in popular favor.

War Prompts Invention

THE OLD PROVERB that necessity is the mother of invention is finding confirmation both in this country and in Great Britain, where army and navy experts are examining numerous contrivances designed to "stop Hitler."

The ingenious minds of both nations have been aroused not only by the reports of vessels sunk by U-boats and bombs but by Hitler's hint that he has some kind of mysterious weapon which will be so devastating as to bring the war to a close with a lightning finish. If he has, he has failed to trot it out so far, unless it is his use of a more deadly submarine torpedo.

It is admitted that many of the inventions submitted are worthless and perhaps fantastic, but the experts are taking no chances. Somewhere in this mass of plans and devices there may be the germ of an idea that is well worth following up.

Well-known scientists have not brought out all the inventions which have proved of value. Many an idea has had a humble birth, the result of an accident or of an abnormal mentality. It was an accident which pointed the way for Goodyear to perfect the process of vulcanizing rubber, for example. Even the builders of the first submarine were looked upon as a little cracked, while Professor Langley, of the Smithsonian Institution, died of a broken heart because his experimental airplane, after it fell into the Potomac river, was unmercifully ridiculed by critics who, after all, were not as smart as they thought they were.

One of the few comforts about modern war is the evidence that no one has yet invented an offensive weapon which could not be counteracted with something that was equally effective. Otherwise there would have been no one in the World War to tell the tale.

It is just possible that Hitler has developed a torpedo much more powerful than those used during the previous war. Projectiles certainly penetrated armor plate on the Royal Oak which was thought to be absolutely impenetrable.

Some plausible devices are shown by real scientists to be impracticable, such as the so-called "death-ray." It is pointed out that while such a ray may be found, it would have to be so powerful at the point of origin that those who manipulated it would be destroyed, and so it goes.

Nevertheless, out of the many ideas that are pouring into the war and navy departments of the United States and Britain, a nucleus may be found for weapons that will meet the foe on his own ground, or perhaps go him several better.

Nature's Glory

NOT IN YEARS has Nature wrapped itself in such a glorious mantle of harmonious coloring as she has brought out from her chest of mysteries for this autumn's art exhibit.

It is like an ancient tapestry whose coloring has been softened by the tender and loving hand of age without lessening the beauty of supplementing contrasts. It is as though a master of color and harmony had worked with supreme skill in the making of a picture so vast and so beautiful as to amaze those whose privilege it is to view the exhibit.

Once more we are witnesses to the manifold and mysterious wonders of Nature, which again works unceasingly to produce a canvas the perfect glory of which casts into faint shadow those products of man, the imitator, which we, in the littleness of our being, count as superb.

Cosch of a badly beaten football team declared it was a "moral victory." His statement sounded exactly like a European government communiqué.

Another reason why there have been no South American revolutions lately is perhaps the fact they couldn't make the front page if they tried.

Putting it on a better quality of paper would enhance the value of the Fuehrer's solemn signature. Beyond that we have nothing to suggest.

What's nicer for a light workout of a crisp October Sunday morning than taking down the screens to let the last of the flies out?

For cuddling up to the Russian Bear, Hitler may go down in history as the fellow who made the same mistake once.

A man yearns for a woman who understands him; a woman never trusts a man who understands her.

Truth crushed to earth would find itself among politicians with their ears to the ground.

Happiness in Marriage

BY MARSHALL MASLEN

I remember reading the results of a questionnaire that Dr. Lewis M. Ferman of Stanford University sent to 306 married couples. He asked them 443 questions and thought he learned that happiness in marriage depended more on similarity of character and tastes than on dissimilarity.

He asked those married couples every kind of question he could think of, and because the questionnaires were anonymous he probably received truthful answers.

So he announced that if a man likes crabs and his wife likes to keep his money in the bank—if the man likes music and his wife thinks it is just a noise—if the man wants children and the woman doesn't—if the man likes drinking companions and the woman prefers teetotalers, then—

The chances of married happiness are in inverse ratio to the number of their differences of opinion.

Dr. Ferman's conclusions seem and are reasonable.

Theoretically and actually, now are two persons of different sex ever going to be happy together if they differ every day they express an opinion?

And yet, how can it be arranged so that they will always marry like? The ridiculous factor of "love" gets in the way. When a man and a woman fall in love, they are alike in the only factor that counts at the moment, and their love is more important than the possibility of ever agreeing on 443 separate items of conduct or opinion.

And even after they are married their love for each other is a great element in their life than the plain happiness that would be theirs if they were more alike.

A marriage may be fierce, stormy, superficially miserable, but the true test of its happiness is in the answer to the question: "Can you imagine being married to anyone else?"

The Human Side Of the News

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Mr. Hymie Augen, sage of Red Hook, the best stuss dealer Hester street ever had, a critic and authority on frisky cubans, and the sanded deck, recreation, war, business and politics, discovers a few current contradictions and confusions.

"Ever since I became an author," said Mr. Augen, "my head has been buzzing like a cageful of squirrels. You take an ordinary every-day geek, whether he is a grifter or just a working stiff, he knows pretty well where he's at. If he gets in a little trouble, he knows how to put in a little fix if he has to. And if he is not a dope, he learns how to get his percentage, and keep out of jail, etc. He knows his own business, if he is smart.

"But an author is always laying awake nights trying to figure somebody else's business. You roll 'em yourself and you know a six-face ain't snake-eyes and nobody can tell you what your point is. But maybe you don't see so good if a stranger has a pair of tap-dice and maybe it ain't any of your business anyway. That makes a lot of trouble for authors and cops.

Big Armament Purchase

"What I mean is things like this: A couple of years ago I read in the newspapers that England had reached down in the kick for $7,500,000,000 to buy plenty new fighting tools and that they would have thousands of new fighting planes as fast as they kick them out at their factories or buy them over here or in Canada. When Chamberlain guessed wrong at Munich about which little shell Czechoslovakia was under, England was pretty sore and I read this in the paper, which I cut out and carried in my pocket, because I think it is time somebody measured this Hitler for the old one-two.

"Great Britain is diligently expanding her air force, to man the new bombers and pursuit planes, which it is rapidly building or acquiring. A spokesman for the war office said today that the number of highly trained pilots available was already far in excess of any possible demand due to the increased number of planes. Any war emergency will find the air personnel more than ample."

Would Rob Own Trunk

"That looked like something you could make a book on and I felt pretty good about it, as I think these Nazis aren't acting right and would rob their own trunk if there was no country to snatch in their regular working hours. Old England is heeled with plenty of planes and aviators. That's lake with me.

"Then they had to fan me awake when I read the paper last week England used sheep-herders, lawyers and stock brokers for aviators to fight off the German planes from the Fifth of Forth, near which was their navy yard and being hit there would be the worst work in the bracket old England could get. It was right there in the paper, the way it had been handed out by the Ministry of Information, as they call their mouthpiece over there.

"This place bragged about their book doing so well and said only a few weeks before they had been sheep-herders etc. There wasn't a word about that $7,500,000,000 to get in fangside form two years ago, or about all those trained aviators they had.

Gives It Up

"I haven't seen any other authors try to figure this and I give it up. And that's just one of a lot of funny things you see in the papers. They got sheep-herders for war-fliers in England and over here they've got an aviator and a prize-fighter dealing all the deep stuff about whether we are neutral or not, or ought to be. Lindbergh says a couple of pieces on the radio and then, up in Boston, Gene Tunney jumps Lindbergh for having the crust to tell us Americans how we should think and ordering Canada out of the British Empire and then come talk in his own mouth what to do. Maybe they'll have me preaching in Grace church before this is over. Gene Tunney and Colonel Lindbergh are my favorite fighter and aviator." Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WHO MOVED TO ADJOURN POLITICS ON ACCOUNT OF WAR?

Delay in Appointment of a Successor To Swanson As Navy Head Is Puzzling

The Genuine Substitute
From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Democratic National Committee, in the current release of its clip sheet, dusts off the old 1936 charge that the Republicans have nothing to offer as a substitute for the New Deal.

Referring to the twelve-point program recently suggested by Congressman Martin, the Republican floor leader, the clip sheet says:

"Every item in it is either negative or so general and ambiguous as to give nothing to take hold of. . . . Its generalities don't even glitter. . . . Almost all of Mr. Martin's points were for repeal of some piece of New Deal legislation."

Aside from the humor of a chastisement of New Deal opponents for dealing in generalities, what may be said of this criticism of Republican proposals? After all, what does the situation demand further than abandonment of this New Deal madness?

When a house is on fire, we think first of putting out the fire, rather than the type of structure which should rise in the place of the destroyed property. When a horse is running away, the way to save the load is to stop the animal, not to speculate upon where a gentler one may be found.

This country is suffering from the New Deal and from nothing else—extravagance almost beyond comprehension; from a debt which will be hanging over us for generations; from taxation which now confiscates about a third of the national income; from persistence in the suicidal policy of spending more than is collected; from the insane policy of trading off the home market for the foreign market; from a vast and growing army of public employees constituting the greatest political machine of all time; from governmental interference with the natural functioning of private enterprise; from a substitution of collectivism for our traditional system of individual initiative.

National salvation requires nothing but the abandonment of all of this and a return to the American way of things.

What more program would any party of opposition ask? Upon what other basis could it better serve the needs of the day.

On the Record

By Representative Eugene E. Cox, Democrat, of Georgia

If the Roosevelt Administration is not through and through with unscrupulous Communists who are not hampering industry, navy, air, and the three of agriculture and take away the liberties of individual citizens. . . . What is to be expected over the purpose of strangling and hamstringing a free competitive profit system has been accomplished? Nothing is left but an advanced state of socialism, Communism or the Russian kind. If and when it becomes impossible for private capital to invest and venture their business in the hope and expectation of making a fair profit, there is nothing left for the nation but to revert to a state of collectivism under some dictatorship headed up in Washington.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Why President Roosevelt has been so slow about naming a successor to the late Claude A. Swanson of the navy is by no means clear.

During the months following Swanson's death, Charles Edison has been acting secretary. For that matter, he was, in effect, head of the department throughout the period of his superior's long illness. It's the consensus that he's handled the job very efficiently. When Swanson died the general assumption was that Edison would be appointed to fill the vacancy. But he hasn't been. He's remained simply acting.

Today it's reported that the White House will make a selection after congress adjourns. "Why adjourn?" Why not now? If Edison were picked it's a foregone conclusion that the senate would confirm him in short order.

The conclusion's unescapable that he won't be the presidential choice—that F. D. R. has in mind somebody he likes better, but who, perhaps he thinks, won't be so popular. But just why Edison shouldn't be 100 per cent satisfactory to him is a puzzle. Between him and the executive mansion there never has been a hint of the slightest friction. It's hard to guess on any other ground than that the president wants a sleeker politician. Charley's a world's wonder at the upbuilding of a navy, but he isn't much of a dab at politics. He isn't an advertiser of any consequence, either.

There's been talk of other cabinet changes, but they don't look probable.

Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring and Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson supposedly don't agree with a cent, and it frequently is surmised that the administration would be pleased to wish Woodring out in the favor of Johnson. That, however, would create a smell that wouldn't be pleasant.

State Secretary Hull couldn't be dislodged with a charge of dynamite. Ultra-protectionists growl about his trade treaties, but there's no substantial fight against him. In fact, if he were a little younger, he'd be good Democratic presidential timber.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau isn't adversely criticized. No great amount of fault is found with Attorney General Frank Murphy.

The most serious has been terrible under Postmaster General James A. Butler, but it already has begun to degenerate under his Republican predecessor, Walter Francis. Probably Farley has made it a little worse, but not appreciably worse.

Of course Roosevelt and Farley have been rumored to be at odds, but if so, their squabble apparently has been liquidated.

Illness and Things

Commerce Secretary Harry E. Hopkins can't be eliminated. He's sick. It would be inhuman to let a cabinet man on whom the present function.

Profits Not Excessive
From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Much has been heard of late about excess profits and the necessity of curbing them in the public interest.

It is well, of course, for the government to be on the alert against gouging, against the tendency to take advantage of a speculative period to boost prices unreasonably. Before we assume, however, that business can and does prosper unless held under close restraint, it would be well to define an excess profit, and to look at the record of business earnings.

On Army and Navy business, profits are at present limited to twelve per cent, which means about eight per cent actual net income, as federal taxes and some other charges are not deductible. In general business practice, however, six per cent has been accepted as a fair return on invested capital. How have business operations measured up to this standard?

According to statistics published by The Magazine of Wall Street, net income of all corporations in the United States have exceeded six per cent of gross in only two of the past twenty years. In five years, 1921 and 1931 to 1934 inclusive, net losses were recorded. Figures for the depression year 1938 not yet available. For the years in which profits were realized, the average has been just above four per cent.

So that business as a whole doesn't seem to have pocketed so much "excess" profit even in the best of times.

Can't Be Done Suddenly
From the Jelinstown, Pa., Democrat

One of the most timely made prophecies to be heard these days is that "whenever European war will mean the end of civilization."

Because this has been said so often, it is good to hear the calm words of President James B. Conant of Harvard University, which he spoke recently in a class of incoming freshmen. Dr. Conant said certain assumptions about the next two years were "irrefragably probable."

He said that the "irrefragable" action and deed of these two years—that contrary to the dire prophecies of recent years, we are not facing the end of civilization.

A moment's reflection shows that Dr. Conant is right. Such a war has not been fought in the last one century. But a civilization does not die suddenly, from heart failure. It dies gradually, from what the doctors like to call, "emphysema," a "complication of disease."

Forums Are Good If for Debates

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30.—The president in closing the Herald Tribune Forum said he approves of forums. He is everlasting right. So does the country—so long as a forum is a place for debate.

In all this war confusion even the wisest and best informed of people are baffled. Leaders hotly take extreme positions. News is fragmentary. People have been so well warned about propaganda that they don't like to take any single word for anything. They want to hear the other side. Free and open debate where informed advocates of either side of any question came nobly to the grapple is the very best answer to that.

That is one reason for the remarkable growth in popularity of all contests of this kind—and there are several varieties.

Newspapers carrying columns representing both sides of public questions are among the best. Some few don't have columnists whose general trends of opinion differ much from each other or from the editorial policy of the paper—like the New York Times and Herald Tribune, the Chicago News and Tribune. Even that is all right if they are in competition with newspapers which do the same thing on the other side.

HUGH JOHNSON

The Better Answer

That isn't the usual case. The newspaper carrying conflicting columns seems to be the better answer. Even that could be improved, I think, so that a particular question could be discussed from opposing sides in a rather haphazard opposition of views. For there is a second reason why opposing arguments at a time like this have thrown the forum principle into great popularity. It is the inbred American love of a contest of any kind.

Radio forums like "Town Hall of the Air" or even entertaining intellectual contests like "Information Please" have forged to the very front in listener attendance for this reason. The platform lecture followed by a really free-for-all forum with the audience is packing in crowds. The reason is plain. When Huey Long sold patent medicine from booths at county fairs, he used to engineer a dog fight in front of his counter. That drew crowds and then he began his ballyhoo. The fight's the thing.

Long a Lost Art

Face-to-face debate—from such contests as the classic between Lincoln and Douglas to the single form of old Saturday night entertainment in every rural school district—used to be the principal form of education on public questions. It was for long a lost art. It seems now to be in robust revival.

But the essence of the forum institution is debate—conflict of opinion—adversary argument. In the annual Herald Tribune Forum were some of the most brilliant speakers and writers in this country. But they all talked one tongue, no matter what the subject. The topic of nearly all argument was naturally the war in Europe and how it affects us.

The principle theme, without substantial challenge, was that Britain and France are fighting our battles—to make our own world safe for our ideas of government—to prevent perhaps such incursions on us as have been made in Poland—to stay the sweep of Bolshevism.

Full of Holes

All this may be true—and it may not. A vast majority doesn't believe it. As a position to argue it is as full of holes as a sponge. It is a paraphrase of precisely the argument on which we so disastrously went to war in 1917. It is not my purpose to argue that here, I may want to call attention to the fact that there are many other men who could argue it far better than I—and that they were conspicuous by their absence.

It is a "forum" where about the most brilliant possible array of talent is assembled unopposed on a single side. Though unintended, it would have the effect of propaganda of a repetition in its most powerful and dangerous form. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Old Silk Mill Fire Hazard, City Warned

Mayor Orders Prompt Investigation after Citizen Complains

Three Cumberland officials have been warned that a fire in the abandoned Berry Silk Mill would wipe out an entire block in North Mechanic street, according to V. E. Shaffer.

The three officials, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, and Fire Chief Reid C. Hoehnica, voiced this opinion after an inspection of the factory in the rear of his home at 314 North Mechanic street, Shaffer said.

This information was revealed yesterday when Shaffer urged Mayor Harry Irvine and members of city council to do something about the hazard before it is too late.

Also "Tramp Harbor" was a place is a tramp harbor and a fire hazard, Shaffer declared. "I understand that it has been condemned as unfit for use and is now in a dangerous state with roof and floors sagging and the building in danger of collapse."

"It is a refuge for prowlers of all sorts and recently several small fires have been started by children playing in the building."

Shaffer urged that the building be torn down as a safety measure.

Mayor Irvine referred the matter to City Engineer Ralph Rizer and Chief Hoehnica with power to act. Another matter reviewed yesterday by the mayor and council was the report on the Cumberland Playground Commission filed by Katherine N. Bretz, supervisor.

A total of 50,376 visits were reported at Cumberland's five playgrounds by Supervisor Bretz this summer. She also showed that the cost of operation here is below that for cities the size of Cumberland.

The playground equipment will need repairing before being used next summer, the supervisor said.

Alley Closing Deal Suggested
Council yesterday agreed to pay half the cost of condemnation for the closing of an alley in the vicinity of Lexington avenue. David T. Sharp, who made the request, will have to pay the other half if the action is taken, council ruled. Sharp expressed the desire of utilizing the space for a greenhouse two weeks ago.

Engineer Rizer was authorized to extend a sewer line to Reservoir avenue at an estimated cost of $400.

Clarence E. Gross was granted a permit to operate a parking lot at 14-16 South Centre street. A request from Spoor's garage to replace a 500-gallon gasoline tank was referred to the engineer and the fire chief.

Carl M. Sisk was granted permission to install a 1,000-gallon tank at 1801 Bedford street in place of a 550-gallon tank.

New Service Stations Strongly Opposed

Annapolis, Oct. 30 (AP)—Applications for permits to build two service stations on the new Ritchie highway called out a corps of objectors at a special meeting of the county commissioners today.

The "trend toward commercialization" of the property along the new highway is already under scrutiny of the county grand jury at the suggestion of Circuit Judge Ridgeley P. Melvin.

Permits have previously been issued for four commercial structures along the highway. County commissioners said present inadequate laws

Their Stories Fail To Jibe

Judge Believes Wife, Husband Jailed

A young Brunswick man and his wife still couldn't agree on their stories yesterday, and as a result the young man is in the county jail for a ten-day stretch.

The couple, booked as Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Oden Jr., came to the attention of State Trooper B. C. Mason Saturday afternoon when Oden, 22, told a Nave's crossroad service station attendant a hitchhiker had robbed him of his car and $7 and asked that police be notified.

The stories told by Oden and his 17-year-old wife didn't agree—the young girl stating that they had no car, and Trooper Mason clapped them in the city jail pending further investigation.

Beer Caused the Trouble
Yesterday, in Trial Magistrate court, Oden explained his strange actions by telling Magistrate Frank A. Perdue that he and his wife had been drinking beer Saturday afternoon.

"I'm not a drinking man, and the beer must have gone to my head," he said.

But his wife didn't exactly agree again. Admitting that they had been drinking beer, she said that her husband had gotten drunk before and had struck her on several occasions.

She declared, too, that Oden had been fighting with another hitchhiker before they were arrested.

Oden failed to answer when Magistrate Perdue asked him why he had concocted the story about being robbed of his car and money by a hitchhiker.

The upshot was that he was fined $10 and costs on a charge of being disorderly on a public highway and sentenced to ten days in the county jail in default.

No charge was placed against his wife, but she was lodged in the county jail pending the outcome of efforts to return her to Brunswick, where Oden's mother is said to live and where the couple was supposedly headed when picked up.

Mrs. Oden told Magistrate Perdue that she had only forty cents in her purse.

force them to issue permits if the proposed structures comply with laws regulating public health and safety.

Objections to issuance of new permits were filed by the Severn River Association, The Federated Garden Clubs and the Annapolis Improvement Association. A number of individuals either filed protests or appeared in person to object.

The commissioners will vote on issuance of the permits at their regular meeting tomorrow.

Twin Cities Will Have Same Turkey Day

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Oct. 30 (AP)—It's all settled now.

Residents of the twin cities of Bristol, Virginia and Tennessee will eat their turkey the same day—Nov. 23.

Gov. James H. Price of Virginia followed the president's proclamation and set Nov. 23 as Thanksgiving Day, but Gov. Prentiss Cooper of Tennessee rode with the reactionaries and ordered his turkey for Nov. 30.

And there the turkey hung until today.

Major T. P. Preston of Virginia Bristol and Fred U. Vance of Tennessee issued a joint proclamation setting Nov. 23 as Thanksgiving Day.

Patrons of Tennessee in Bristol can still have lunch on the 30th, but it won't be a legal holiday.

cozy. Not that it isn't cozy now. It's just one or two things such as the roof leaking. We asked if perhaps she wouldn't. That was what she called about yesterday.

"What are these?" she inquired interestedly, upon arrival, peering at some prints on the wall.

"Daumier," we replied, liking our landlady at once.

"French, aren't they?"

"Yes, Daumier was a Frenchman," we replied.

"Well, now, what can we do for you?" she inquired pleasantly, fairly oozing generosity.

"Well, we thought perhaps papering and painting, a new rug, a lamp or two."

"Well, I guess that could be done. Look, there, the sun has come out."

"How nice," we said.

At this point our partner came in and was greeted warmly.

"The sun has gone back under a cloud," we noted just to keep the conversation going.

"Yes, it's been a very dull day," our landlady said.

"It would be nice if the sun would stay out all the time, wouldn't it?" we said. "So much more cheerful, you know."

"Yes, wouldn't it?" our landlady agreed.

Then came the bombshell.

"Our landlady, very nicely, said that in view of everything it seemed perhaps that our quarters were worth a little more rent."

"And, of course, there's that time the water ran over in your washbasin and we had to paper all over downstairs," she added as a clincher by a hitch-hiker.

Our partner immediately became very guarded and started spouting higher mathematics right out of his head.

As for ourselves, we had recourse to prayer.

"Uncle Mike, you old rascal of a householder," we prayed, "hear us down there below and give counsel to this lamb about to be shorn. If you aren't available, call Uncle Harry."

"Here I be, you," a kind voice replied almost immediately. "Steady as you go, steady as you go. Don't be so gut-dangled polite. None of your kin folk ever got any place by being polite. Got a knife? Well, get yourself a stick, start whittling and be cautious."

"Nice smart arguin', that," observed Uncle Mike after a moment as our associate plumped deeper and deeper into higher mathematics. "That's right sharp talk for a young squirt. Reminds me of the time I traded Betsy Anne for that boy up in Ripton Holler. Betsy Anne was blind at the time, heh, heh."

"Now, about that extra room in the hall," our landlady remarked shifting the attack. "It really seems we should get $5 a week for that. What do you think?" with a nod in our direction.

"Evidently has mistook your silence for a sign of weakness," Uncle Mike counselled. "Give her a blast, son."

"Oh, I don't know," we said casually, whittling on an old pencil. "Haden't thought much about it. Really don't need it more than we need two heads. Oh, a dollar a month maybe—good closet for our trunks."

"Ha, ha, no more than heads," our landlady said. "Ha, ha, I never heard that before. Sometimes I think I need two. Ha, ha."

"Ha, ha, we replied.

"Nice goin', son," Uncle Mike observed from down below. "Keep a-whittlin'."

"You perhaps know," our landlady was remarking now, "that shortly after we let you have the place another party came along and offered us considerably more, considerably more. Of course, we stuck to our bargain. A bargain is a bargain."

"To be sure," our associate agreed. "To be sure," we echoed, whittling furiously.

"Well, what do you think?" our landlady inquired a trifle tartly.

"Oh, I guess, we'll sleep on it," we observed cautiously as we whittled.

Thus the improvement interview terminated.

And down in Haden we could hear our Uncle Mike chuckling. Good old Uncle Mike.

Barncord Probes School Robbery

No light had been shed last night on yesterday's robbery of $131 in school book money from Ridgeley high school, Police Chief C. V. Barncord reported.

Chief Barncord stated that the robbery occurred early yesterday morning with the thieves breaking into the school building two times before reaching the money they knew was there.

The amount, which had accumulated over a period of weeks, was in a steel filing cabinet in Principal Melvin M. Heiskell's office, Barncord said. Whoever got it knew it was there, the chief added.

The first entry was made through a basement window into the boiler room. A locked door to the principal's office thwarted the thieves at this point.

The second entrance was made by forcing a window directly into the principal's office, Chief Barncord said. Once in, they forced open the steel filing cabinet, the police chief declared.

Most of the money was for schoolbooks although approximately $15 was the property of the Lions club, which had staged a program at the school Saturday.

One of the money bags containing $4 in change was dropped by the thieves in making their getaway, Barncord reported.

It was believed the thieves were frightened away by the arrival of the janitor at 4 a. m.

Laws of Reich Cited In German Will Case

Annapolis, Oct. 30 (AP)—Laws of the German Reich were quoted by the Court of Appeals today in deciding distribution of the estate of the late Pauline Goetsch, who died in Germany but whose $25,000 fortune is in Baltimore banks.

Mrs. Goetsch made a will in 1927 leaving her money to Paul J. Remick of Baltimore, a nephew. Later she made two holographic wills, legal in Germany in 1933 and 1935. She died in Chertsey, Md., in 1937.

The 1935 will revoked the 1933 will, which in turn had changed the beneficiary under the 1927 will.

The court held that revocation of the 1935 will revoked the 1927 instrument. The opinion denied the appeal of Helene Taub, a "niece" living in Germany, who sought to share the estate.

Fort Hill Librarian Elected Secretary Of State Association

Mrs. D. Gertrude Rank, librarian at Fort Hill high school, was elected secretary of the School Librarian's Association which met at Enoch Pratt Library, Baltimore.

The meeting was held in connection with that of the State Teachers' Association. Miss Grace L. Strickland of State Teachers College, Salisbury, Md., was elected president and Sister M. Fides, of Notre Dame School, Baltimore, was elected treasurer.

Others from Cumberland who attended the librarian's meeting were Mrs. Karl Perry and Miss Blanche Snyder.

Ministers and teachers are said to live longer than persons in other professions. Out of every 1,000 clergymen, thirty-four exceed the age of 80.

Quick first aid... costs little now!

Many a painful cut or scratch has gone unattended.

But why take such a risk, when after proper treatment it can be so easily, so quickly, covered by a Band-Aid?

Band-Aid is a Johnson & Johnson product, one of a line of products that has been requested and used by doctors for years. In line with our policy of making our products available to more and more people, we have constantly sought ways to lower the price.

Band-Aid, for instance, is only one-third the price of most of its competitors, even those with Band-Aid's product cost only a fraction of that price only a few years ago.

If you make a household bandage a necessity, it will save you a lot of money. Johnson & Johnson's Band-Aid is a necessity.

Old Silk Mill Is Fire Hazard, City Warned

Mayor Orders Prompt Investigation after Citizen Complains

Three Cumberland officials have been warning that a fire in the abandoned Berry Silk Mill would pose out an entire block in North Mechanic street, according to V. E. Shaffer.

The three officials, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, and Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka, voiced this opinion after an inspection of the factory in the rear of his home at 314 North Mechanic street, Shaffer said.

This information was revealed yesterday when Shaffer urged Mayor Harry Irvine and members of city council to do something about the hazard before it is too late.

Also "Tramp Harbor" and a fire hazard," Shaffer declared. "I understand that it has been condemned as unfit for use and is now in a dangerous state with roof and floors sagging and the building in danger of collapse."

"It is a refuge for prowlers of all sorts and recently several small fires have been started by children playing in the building."

Shaffer urged that the building be torn down as a safety measure. Mayor Irvine referred the matter to City Engineer Edith Rizer and Chief Hoenicka with power to act.

Another matter reviewed yesterday by the mayor and council was the report on the Cumberland Playground Commission filed by Katherine N. Bretz, supervisor.

A total of 50,376 visits were reported at Cumberland's five playgrounds by Supervisor Bretz this summer. She also showed that the cost of operation here is below that for cities the size of Cumberland.

The playground equipment will be repaired before being used next summer, the supervisor said.

Alley Closing Deal Suggested
Council yesterday agreed to pay half the cost of condemnation for the closing of an alley in the vicinity of Lexington avenue. David T. Tharp, who made the request, will have to pay the other half if the action is taken, council ruled. Tharp expressed the desire of utilizing the space for a greenhouse two weeks ago.

Engineer Rizer was authorized to extend a sewer line to Reservoir avenue at an estimated cost of $400. Clarence E. Gross was granted a permit to operate a parking lot at 14-16 South Centre street. A request from Spoor's garage to replace a 500-gallon gasoline tank was referred to the engineer and the fire chief.

Carl M. Sisk was granted permission to install a 1,000-gallon tank at 1401 Bedford street in place of a 550-gallon tank.

New Service Stations Strongly Opposed
Annapolis, Oct. 30 (AP)—Applications for permits to build two service stations on the new Ritchie highway called out a corps of objectors at a special meeting of the county commissioners today.

The "trend toward commercialization" of the property along the new highway is already under scrutiny of the county grand jury at the suggestion of Circuit Judge Ridgeley P. Melvin.

Permits have previously been issued for four commercial structures along the highway. County commissioners said present inadequate laws

Their Stories Fail To Jibe

Judge Believes Wife, Husband Jailed

A young Brunswick man and his wife still couldn't agree on their stories yesterday, and as a result the young man is in the county jail for a ten-day stretch.

The couple, booked as Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Oden Jr., came to the attention of State Trooper B. C. Mason Saturday afternoon when Oden, 22, told a Nave's crossroad service station attendant a hitch-hiker had robbed him of his car and $7 and asked that police be notified.

The stories told by Oden and his wife still didn't agree—the young girl stating that they had no car, and Trooper Mason clapped them in the city jail pending further investigation.

Beer Caused the Trouble
Yesterday, in Trial Magistrate court, Oden explained his strange actions by telling Magistrate Frank A. Perdue that he and his wife had been drinking beer Saturday afternoon.

"I'm not a drinking man, and the beer must have gone to my head," he said.

But his wife didn't exactly agree again. Admitting that they had been drinking beer, she said that her husband had gotten drunk before and had struck her on several occasions.

She declared, too, that Oden had been fighting with another hitch-hiker before they were arrested.

Oden failed to answer when Magistrate Perdue asked him why he had concocted the story about being robbed of his car and money by a hitch-hiker.

The upshot was that he was fined $10 and costs on a charge of being disorderly on a public highway and sentenced to ten days in the county jail in default.

No charge was placed against his wife, but she was lodged in the county jail pending the outcome of efforts to return her to Brunswick, where Oden's mother is said to live and where the couple was supposedly headed when picked up.

Mrs. Oden told Magistrate Perdue that she had only forty cents in her purse.

force them to issue permits if the proposed structures comply with laws regulating public health and safety.

Objections to issuance of new permits were filed by the Severn River Association, The Federated Garden Clubs and the Arnold Improvement Association. A number of individuals either filed protests or appeared in person to object.

The commissioners will vote on issuance of the permits at their regular meeting tomorrow.

copy. Not that it isn't cozy now. It's just one or two things such as the roof leaking. We asked if perhaps she wouldn't. That was what she called about yesterday.

"What are these?" she inquired interestedly, upon arrival, peering at some prints on the wall.

"Daumier," we replied, liking our landlady at once.

"French, aren't they?"

"Yes, Daumier was a Frenchman," we replied.

"Well, now, what can we do for you?" she inquired pleasantly, fairly cooing generosity.

"Well, we thought perhaps papering and painting, a new rug, a lamp or two."

"Well, I guess that could be done. Look, there, the sun has come out."

"How nice," we said. At this point our partner came in and was greeted warmly.

"The sun has gone back under a cloud," we noted just to keep the conversation going.

"Yes, it's been a very dull day," our landlady said.

"It would be nice if the sun would stay out all the time, wouldn't it?" we said. "So much more cheerful, you know."

"Yes, wouldn't it?" our landlady agreed.

Then came the bombshell.

"Our landlady, very nicely, said that in view of everything it seemed perhaps that our quarters were worth a little more rent."

"And, of course, there's that time the water ran over in your wash-bowl and we had to paper all your downstairs," she added as a clincher.

Our partner immediately became very guarded and started spouting higher mathematics right out of his head.

As for myself, we had recourse to prayer.

"Uncle Mike, you old rascal of a householder," we prayed, "bear us down there below and give counsel to this lamb about to be shorn. If you aren't available, call Uncle Harry."

"Here I be, you," a kind voice replied almost immediately. "Steady as you go, steady as you go. Don't be so gut-banged polite. None of your kin folk ever got any place by being polite. Got a knife? Well, go yourself a stick, start whittling and be cautious."

"Nice sharp arguin', that," observed Uncle Mike after a moment as our associate played neggar and deeper into higher mathematics. "That's right sharp talk for a young squirt. Reminds me of the time I traded Betsy Anne for that bay up in Ripton Holler. Betsy Anne was blind at the time, heh, heh."

"Now, about that extra room in the hall," our landlady remarked shifting the attack. "It really seems we should get $5 a week for that. What do you think?" with a nod in our direction.

"Evidently has mistook your silence for a sign of weakness," Uncle Mike counseled. "Give her a blast, son."

"Oh, I don't know," we said casually, whittling on an old pencil. "Hain't thought much about it. Really don't need it more than we need two heads. Oh, a dollar a month maybe—good closet for our trunks."

"Ha, ha, no more than heads," our landlady said. "Ha, ha, I never heard that before. Sometimes I think I need two, Ha, ha."

"Nice goin', son," Uncle Mike observed from down below. "Keep a-whittlin'."

"You perhaps know," our landlady was remarking now, "that shortly after we let you have the place another party came along and offered us considerably more, considerably more. Of course, we stuck to our bargain. A bargain is a bargain."

"To be sure," our associate agreed. "To be sure," we echoed, whittling furiously.

"Well, what do you think?" our landlady inquired a trifle tartly.

"Oh, I dunno, we'll sleep on it," we observed cautiously as we whittled.

Thus the improvement interview terminated.

And down in Hades we could hear old Uncle Mike chuckling. Good old Uncle Mike.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

When LANCY said he would call Orton in, I looked at Alan and he looked at me. I don't know what he was thinking, but my thoughts ran something like this: How on earth can even a detective call a man into his office and question him about his successful love affair before the discarded lover, without making the latter look ridiculous? But I was reckoning without LANCY's years of experience. Such a situation was no obstacle to him. When Bruce Orton appeared, LANCY merely asked him to sit down and remarked pleasantly that he had some questions he wished to discuss with us there. Orton nodded. There was, apparently, nothing in the grouping of us together to disturb him. He took prompt advantage of LANCY's permission to us all to smoke if we pleased, but the lighted match he burned down to his fingers and he dropped it with a yelp of pain without lighting the cigarette he held. The jubilation faded from his face and a bewildered stricken look grew there as he listened to LANCY's words.

"You may be surprised at the topic I wish to discuss, Orton," began LANCY, suavely, "but it is necessary to the course of this investigation."

He looked searchingly at Orton, who again nodded affirmatively, and the detective went on: "I want to know what you told Miss Peake last night which caused her to break her engagement to Murray and agree to marry you?"

It was a sledge hammer blow delivered in a crisp authoritative manner which held Orton's eyes spellbound on LANCY's until the flame of the match licked his fingers.

"Ouch!" he cried, and dropped the match upon the floor, where it flared for an instant and then turned to black cinder, unnoticed by either LANCY or Orton.

"So THAT was it," he muttered under his breath. Then, quickly: "Who says Josie was engaged to marry Murray?"

"I do," Alan's voice was steady and even.

Orton wrenched his gaze from LANCY to Alan. The truth must have been plainly discernible in the latter's blue eyes, for Orton turned promptly back to LANCY. He rumpled his thick light hair with an uneasy hand, as he said:

"This is a blow to me. I didn't dream what I said to her influenced her decision. I'll tell you about that later. I suppose I'll have to." His voice held a questioning inflection.

"You will," LANCY's voice was hard. "You had no business to tell her anything which you had not told the police."

"I didn't tell her. At least, not the way you mean." At this about face on Orton's part, LANCY's forehead wrinkled into a black scowl. He started to speak, but Orton continued:

"I think I'd better go back and tell you a bit about things so you'll understand my position."

The scowl slowly faded from LANCY's face. "That would be best," he commented coldly. It was easily seen that Orton, by his contradictory statement, had aroused the detective's distrust.

"I met Josie Peake last winter. I knew I wanted her for my wife the moment I saw her. But I don't want a woman who loves another man." His voice hardened.

"That long chin of his, which I had previously declared determined and ruthless, jutted forward in a threatening manner.

"If she loves you," his pale eyes swept to Alan, "you can have her. But if she says she loves me, I'll keep her though the devil stands back of you."

"Agreed," snapped out Alan. "We'll abide by her decision."

"I came here this summer for one reason only: To win Josie. I was about discouraged and ready to go home. I couldn't pin her down to anything, when her mother was murdered. Since then I haven't said a word to her about marriage until last night. I shouldn't have then, except for what happened."

He was silent for a bit while we waited eagerly for what was coming next.

"I hate to tell you this, but I

Legend of the Bath

By HELEN FOLLETT

AS A HYGIENIC measure for hushing yawning nerves and putting the fine texture and rosy glow on the complexion, the daily bath with warm soap suds and a heavy brush—no accent the brush—rates 100 per cent effective.

It is a legend that civilized human beings bathe daily; not a fact. Dress fitters tell tall tales of untidy ladies who come to them for beautiful garments.

A good old scouring stimulates the skin all over the body, gives the delicate glands of the face less work to do. In treatment of pimples, bathing is a necessary part. Then there is that lovely fresh look that comes to the face after a thorough tubbing. Nothing like it. No woman who isn't a bath fiend can appear well groomed.

Skin scales do a continual hello-and-goodbye performance; the dead scales must be washed away if the cutaneous surface is to be satin smooth. The exudations from the skin unite with dead scales, set up a chemical action which produces an unpleasant odor.

The fastidious woman finds enjoyment in her daily scrubbing. It enlivens her spirits, sets her on her toes, makes her start the day right. If the bath is perfumed, she feels like a million dollars. She finishes with a tonic rubdown and a dusting over with fragrant powder.

Have you a nose that doesn't care how red it gets or when it gets that way? It's an annoying facial feature that drives one crazy. Stop using a heavy powder, and use the powder pad lightly. A red nose has to be treated gently. When bathing the face, use tepid water; never water that is hot or cold.

Experiment with nightly application of ointment of zinc oxide which, in course of time, will make the skin less sensitive to atmospheric changes. Spread it on. Massage is not necessary; in fact, friction of any kind is likely to increase the rosy glow.

Legend of the Bath

By HELEN FOLLETT

AS A HYGIENIC measure for hushing yowling nerves and putting the fine texture and rosy glow on the complexion, the daily bath with warm soap suds and a heavy brush—we accept the brush—takes 100 per cent effective.

It is a legend that civilized human beings bathe daily; not a fact. Dress fitters tell tales of untidy ladies who come to them for beautiful garments.

A good old scouring stimulates the skin all over the body, gives the delicate glands of the face less work to do. In treatment of pimples, bathing is a necessary part. Then there is that lovely fresh look that comes to the face after a thorough tubbing. Nothing like it. No woman who isn't a bath fiend can appear well groomed.

Skin scales do a continual hello-and-goodbye performance; the dead scales must be washed away if the cutaneous surface is to be satin smooth. The exudations from the skin unite with dead scales, set up a chemical action which produces an unpleasant odor.

The fastidious woman finds enjoyment in her daily scrubbing. It enlivens her spirits, sets her on her toes, makes her start the day right. If the bath is perfumed, she feels like a million dollars. She finishes with a tonic rubdown and a dusting over with fragrant powder.

Have you a nose that doesn't care how red it gets or when it gets that way? It's an annoying facial feature that drives one crazy.

Stop using a heavy powder, and use the powder pad lightly. A red nose has to be treated gently. When bathing the face, use tepid water;

First Problem Of Nervous Child Is with Parents

More Relaxation and New Philosophy Are Recommended

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The mother of an eight and one-half-year-old child writes a letter. "She is a very nervous child and has always chewed her nails," she says. "We tried ignoring this habit but lately I have tried to teach her to have pride in her nails. I told her that when her nails got real long I would put bright red polish on them. This idea seems to appeal to her, but during any excitement her fingers fly to her mouth."

"I spank her occasionally with a ruler on her bare bottom. This sounds cruel, but my hand alone makes no impression whatever. I also put her in a chair for 15 or 20 minutes when she disobeys me, but she almost drives me frantic asking if 'the clock says its time to get down.' Then she will sneak down but run back when she sees me looking at her."

"My husband is a school teacher and is rather flighty and nervous. In spite of this, he is a very good teacher and 'has a way' with the school children. It is only when he comes home tired and wants to read the paper for a few minutes that our little girl makes him nervous. She wants to sit on his lap, but when she gets there, climbs all over him and won't be still a minute. In the house or outside she runs continuously."

Must Touch

"I simply have not been able to teach her to look at other people's things without touching them. When we go visiting, she handles everything and usually I sit on the edge of my chair during the entire visit. If she and I go in a store, she will not let me hold her hand and yet, if I do not, she wanders all over the store and sometimes comes back with her arms loaded. I always take her back and make her return the articles, trying at the same time to explain why she should not do this."

My answer in part — Your first problem is with the parents. You, Mother, need to relax more. Keep the radio off, except for soft music, while the child is awake. Dad needs to get a new philosophy. Then he can learn, on coming home, to let the paper wait until he has had some time with the child. He should read rhymes and stories to her from illustrated books, expecting her not to jump around while he reads. If she does stir about, he could cease reading and refuse to entertain her further for exactly half an hour.

Argue Too Much

After he has read to her, say for 30 minutes, he could properly shift, with adequate warning, to reading the newspaper, and resume reading to the child after a definite announced time.

You explain and argue too much to that child. You warn and threaten and then, when you lose your temper, it is the ruler. Clearly give a forbidding just once. Punish her immediately for failure to cease promptly, assigning her to sit for exactly 20 minutes. If she leaves the chair before the clock rings, give her a good spanking. Allow not a single exception.

Until she has learned complete control at home, keep her from the store or other people's homes, or hold her all the time she is there. And show her more love and affection when she is good.

New York, Oct. 30 — The program which last year was known as Women in the Making of America comes back to the WJZ-NBC network at 2 p. m. Tuesday under a new title, Gallant American Women. It had been slated for a previous reintroduction, but was postponed at the last minute. State Departments Save $353,782.51 In Fiscal Year in funds they could have spent but didn't, Governor O'Connor reported. The governor said the reversion of the funds "was heartening when one takes into consideration the general opinion among taxpayers that public officials are only too ready to spend every cent they can lay their hands on."

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 30. (AP)—State departments in the fiscal year just ended turned back $353,782.51

He said he "had no idea" the saving would run that large "when I issued my statement in September to the department heads, asking them to conserve all unspent balances." The governor said the reversions in the aggregate constituted "one of the important factors" making possible the state surplus of more than $3,800,000 at the fiscal year's Sept. 30. "It must not be thought, however, that because this large amount reverted to the treasury, it can be spent without further ado. Money now becomes part of the general state surplus and can be spent only through legislative action."

Vols on Outskirts of Big-Time Football

Tennessee's Rise Is Attributed To Neyland's Genius

Public Wants Volunteers To Play Strong Teams of Nation

KNOXVILLE LIKES MAJOR FOOTBALL

Droves of People Jam City's Hotels and Restaurants

By DON WHITEHEAD

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 30 (AP)—The University of Tennessee stands today on the outskirts of that phase of modern education known as "big-time football" and ahead lie the pitfalls of overemphasis, which have been avoided successfully in the past.

For two years now, Tennessee has been ranked among the nation's top gridiron powers, a sensational rise attributed largely to the coaching genius of Major Robert Reese Neyland, ex-army engineer.

The foes of Tennessee have been mostly southern teams of equal rank, but schedules have been liberally sprinkled with the little fellows.

However, there is a growing clamor from the public for Tennessee to schedule the strongest eastern and northern teams possible and to step into the big time with banners flying.

Knoxville likes major league football. It brings droves of people into the city on week-ends to jam the hotels and restaurants, a free-spirited throng that leaves behind thousands of dollars.

Major Neyland is the ringmaster of these week-end circuses, and on his shoulders rests the burden of satisfying the public without letting the University become an annex to the stadium.

President James D. Holskins and Major Neyland have defended the so-called "powder puff" schedules as entirely adequate in providing entertainment for the public and for the physical welfare of the players.

Neyland's Great Record But that has not satisfied the critics who vision Tennessee team on intersectional junkies, vying annually for the national championship.

Taking over a mediocre squad 13 years ago when transferred here from West Point for ROTC duty, Neyland immediately clicked as a coach. For seven straight years his teams lost only two games, while the other five seasons were marred only by tie games.

Last year he produced an unbeaten and untied team to win the Southeastern Conference championship, and experts believe this year's outfit is even stronger.

He became so engrossed in coaching after the 1935 season he resigned from the army and signed a five-year contract with Tennessee at a reported salary of $12,000.

After his great season last year, the university extended his contract five years, with his salary reportedly upped to $15,000.

Despite the growing popularity of Neyland's teams, the university and the athletic association did not jump overboard to build a huge bowl to accommodate clamoring fans. With WPA aid, the stadium was enlarged to seat 35,000 people, a modest arrangement compared to "big time" stadiums.

Team Has Drawing Power

Neyland said after the Alabama game, which Tennessee won 21-0, that he believed 75,000 tickets could have been sold had there been room. That means thousands of dollars lost and a jolt to the university's none-too-fat coffers.

Should Neyland's team get the Rose Bowl bid this year, Tennessee will be placed squarely in the center of the national spotlight.

A good many observers who have watched the cautious Major during the past 13 years believe he can step into the big time with his Volunteers and still maintain an even balance.

A tactful tactician, Neyland has succeeded in getting full cooperation from university officials with no outward trace of jealousy over his growing prestige — or the fact that his salary is considerably larger than those of faculty members.

May Act as Lever

Some believe, also, that football may act as a lever to shove the school into a better financial position, since the state of Tennessee stands in the lower bracket of states in the amount of money expended on education.

At any rate, Tennessee is in a position to "cash in" on football if a policy of expansion is adopted.

The great majority of students want "big-time" ball; the public is clamoring for it — and university officials are tolerant where football is concerned.

So don't be surprised if Tennessee's Volunteers begin playing to huge crowds in the east and north. The signs are pointing that way.

Married Missourians

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 30 — Three University of Missouri football players have wives. They are Lowell Pickett, guard; Bob Wakeman, tackle; and Rayburn Chase, fullback.

Crowd Is With Canzoneri In Fight Against Davis

By JOHN LARDNER Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

New York, Oct. 30.—As a contribution to the future of the fight business, the battle this week between Tony Canzoneri, former world's featherweight and lightweight champion, and Al Davis, a smart young hitter from the reclaimed marshes of Brooklyn, will amount to nothing much unless Davis wins.

After all, the fight business has had the best of Canzoneri. The round-faced Italian is slowly burning out. He can't fight as he used to. He can't hit or box or move around as he used to. If he wins, it will simply postpone the end of a great fighter for a few months, perhaps only for a few weeks. Davis, on the other hand, in winning, may plant his foot on the road to fame and glory.

That is the practical aspect of this fight. But the practical aspect means little here for Davis and his future are a couple of chips teetering upon the wave of popular feeling which follows Canzoneri.

Tony Fighting for Security

Tony is fighting for security. Tony is fighting to save his worldly possessions. Tony is fighting with his back to the wall. The watching crowd will know all this, and since fight crowds are highly emotional, this crowd will rise to the bait of tears-and-thunder as clearly as any promoter or writer of slogans could wish.

But I think there is something more than sentimentality in the feeling for Canzoneri. There's the memory of Tony's greatness. Before his eyes the crowd will see a man who was once the greatest fighter of his generation, still performing, still tracing the outlines of the art that made him great.

If a French soldier saw Bonaparte standing against the sky on his island of exile, in uniform, his hand in his coat, the soldier's feeling would be neither pitying nor sentimental. He would hear a trumpet, and feel as he did at Jena, Marengo, and Austerlitz.

Canzoneri is nothing but a former bootblack with nice manners, hard-working and kind to women and children. He happened to be born, though, with a gift for fighting, and that is a gift which grips the public's imagination. The deep, full yell which greets the little bootblack whenever he jumps into a prize ring and throws out his chest and cocks his eye at the enemy is something that must be heard before you can understand the spell that Canzoneri holds.

Tony May Be Nearly 34

This fellow with a face like a garcon's was born in the year—well, it's hard to be sure what year he was born in. Sammy Goldman, his manager, informs me that the church records in the hamlet of Sidiel, La., give the date of Tony's origin as Nov. 6, 1908, which means that Mr. Canzoneri is crowding 31. On the other hand, the older record books date him back to 1905. It's common practice among fighters to move their birth dates up as the years go by, and it would not surprise me if the earlier figure were correct, making Tony almost 34—a ripe old age for a prizefighter, especially a little prizefighter.

To cope with Al Davis, young, eager, and possessed of a damaging left-hand punch, Canzoneri must make his brain, instinct, and experience do double duty. Besides avoiding Davis's left he must feint the youth into many a right-hand counter-punch, for Tony's wallop no longer packs the old authority, and he'll have to keep hitting to get his man.

One of the features of Canzoneri's style is the fact that he doesn't guard his head with his hands. His arms swing at his sides, throwing the burden of defense on a bobbing head and a pair of agile legs. His margin of safety is remarkably slight. Even in his best days, the wild, swinging punches of the enemy never missed Tony by more than a couple of inches. He liked to play it close, to be on top of his man for the counter-blow.

They generally misled him in those days, but his legs are no longer as strong and flexible as formerly, which is apt to mean the difference between victory and defeat. Tony himself thinks his instinct is still sharp enough to protect him.

"I don't move around as much as fast as I used to," he admits. "But, listen, I can turn, duck, and shift on a dime. I know too much for this boy. I'm gonna beat him I've got to."

That's the truth. Canzoneri has got to win this fight to earn further major matches and keep the wolf at bay. Few people think he can do it. Everybody hopes he can. And everybody knows he'll give a show, a Canzoneri show. Even in defeat and decline, your maiden aunt could spot this man for a great fighter.

Bedfast Grid Coach Inspires His Squad

Bellaire, O., Oct. 30 (AP)—Grid Coach Johnny "Butch" Niemec, Bedfast after an appendectomy, heard via telephone Saturday how Martins Ferry High School scored two touchdowns against his Bellaire team, gave his boys a pep talk through an assistant at the half, and grinned broadly as they romped to a 18-13 victory to remain undefeated this season.

Michigan Takes Leaf from Book Of Brown Bomber

Crisler's Eleven Seems To Enjoy "Getting Things Done Quick"

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 30 (AP)—In this game called football Michigan is taking a leaf from heavy-weight champion Joe Louis' book, and getting things over with, for all practical purposes, in the early rounds.

Risen now, through the smashing triumph over Yale, to an eminence previously uncertain for them because their victims had not all been considered top flight eleven, the Wolverines today were accepted high up among the nation's leaders. One reason was obvious.

Get In First Punch

Like their fellow Michiganeer, the Brown Bomber, the walloping Wolverines get that first punch in—and, oh, how it hurts!—and then keep the foe on his heels until the ultimate decision has become a trifling formality.

That's the way it was with Yale Saturday, when Michigan won its fourth straight, 27 to 7. Three touchdowns in the first half for a 21-0 lead, biggest halftime advantage any Eli eleven ever permitted an opponent, and thereafter a sort of coasting style, with a taut defense.

The Yale game followed exactly the warfare methods of this hot Michigan team in three previous battles. Michigan State fell, 26 to 13, with all the Wolverine points arriving in the first half. Iowa succumbed, 27 to 7, with Michigan rushing over three touchdowns in the first half.

Even against hapless Chicago, it was like that. The Wolverines, in the 85-0 rout, counted 53 points in the initial 30 minutes. All told, in their four engagements the Wolverines have concentrated on the first half for 122 of their total 165 points.

Lots of Reserves

And supporters say that if a "pinch" should ever confront them in the second half, there should be plenty of power left to meet it. So far Michigan's reserves haven't been tested, but in event of emergency the Michigan enthusiasts, who are admiring Fritz Crisler's outfit more and more for its speed, poise and sheer strength, will look for the Wolverines to finish off the opposition in the manner of Champion Louis against Pastor; there was a delay there, but the end was the same.

With a big, fast charging line and a scintillating backfield, this first half business of Michigan's is simple on the face of it. Generally the drive starts with rookie Bob Westfall, sophomore fullback, shredding the opposing line. Then tackle-down Tom Harmon, fleet and agile, goes to work off the tackles and around the ends, pitching a pass here and there, and the story is ended.

To Set Date January 1 For Future "Specials"

Laurel, Md., Oct. 30 (AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt, president of the Maryland Jockey Club, announced today that henceforth the date of the Pimlico Special would be set each year on January 1 to avoid interference with stakes at other tracks.

The date for this year's Special, to be run Wednesday, wasn't announced until late in September. As a result, two or three "specialists"—Chalcedon and Kayak II—passed up the Washington Handicap at Laurel Saturday.

That caused some criticism of the adverse effect the Special had on other stakes with nearby dates. Announcement of the Special date on the first of the year would give the other tracks an opportunity to arrange their schedules without conflict.

Following the practice inaugurated this year, the conditions of each year's Special will not be announced until the Jockey club has taken a national poll to determine the race the public would like to see most.

Navy Sees Mistakes

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 30 (AP)—A grim-faced gang of Navy football men, determined to salvage the rest of their season after two defeats, were given a day off by Coach Swede Larson today to watch their mistakes in the Clemson game shown up by motion pictures.

The movies disclosed that Navy men had "set-up" shots at Shad Bryant, the Clemson ace who ran to the first touchdown, in his 40-yard romp, but missed their tackles cleanly.

The tell-tale pictures also showed Navy backs violated the first rule of pass defense in letting Maness get behind them to take the leave for the second touchdown.

"Two perfect plays clocked perfectly, aided by our mistakes, and there was the ball game," Larson said.

Chet Lee, sub end, was the only Navy casualty in the Clemson game. His knee was twisted badly and he may be out of the Penn game at Philadelphia Saturday.

New Fighters Will Appear on Shamrock Card

Five Boys Will Be Making First Start in a Local Ring

When the leather starts flying at the Queen City hotel ballroom next Monday night at the Shamrock Athletic Club's boxing card, it will be marked by the appearance of several new faces to the squared circle.

Bill Niland, matchmaker for the Shamrock Club said last night he will call on Fred Hosey and Bill Heyer of Cumberland, Carl Arnold and Junior Day of Green Spring, W. Va., and Don Coughenour of Wyndman, Pa. These boys will be making their first starts in a local ring.

Fred Hosey, 165 lbs., will take on "Don" Coughenour, 165 lbs., of Wyndman, Pa. "Junior" Day opposes Bill Heyer in a battle of lightweights, and Carl Arnold 126 lbs. of Green Spring, W. Va., takes on "Smoker" Joe Niland, younger brother of "Bill" in one of the feature bouts of the evening.

Two other bouts have been made and three are to be made up this week. "Pete" Smith, Green Spring heavyweight takes on "Joe" Zellinski, Frostrubing, in a bout scheduled for three rounds, and "Perdy" Franchi will get his chance for revenge when he faces the hard punching Dan Booth of Eckhart in another three-round bout.

Another bout, pending the acceptance of one of the principals, is between "Rugged Bill" Corbin and Delton Parker. This match, if Niland can swing it, promises to supply the fight fans in this vicinity with plenty of action.

Luke	4	11	.267

The Frostburg Majestics lost two games to the Devon Club of Luke at Frostburg last week but retained their two-game margin in the Georges Creek Bowling League as Midland, previously tied for second with Piedmont, dropped three to Lonaconing at Coney and Piedmont lost two to Keyser on the latter's alleys.

Two new records were registered. "Tubby" Wilcox of the Devon Club scattered 581 pins to capture the set mark previously held by Jacobs of Frostburg, who spilled 559.

Lonaconing put a new single game record on the books when it knocked over 892. Frostburg held the old record of 852. Jacobs' 264 for one game and Frostburg's 2459 for the set withstood the barrage.

Harris starred for Frostburg with 552 while Wilcox stood out for Luke. They were the only ones to go over 500. The summaries:

Vols on Outskirts of Big-Time Football

Tennessee's Rise Is Attributed To Neyland's Genius

Public Wants Volunteers To Play Strong Teams of Nation

KNOXVILLE LIKES MAJOR FOOTBALL

Droves of People Jam City's Hotels and Restaurants

By DON WHITEHEAD

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 30 (AP)—The University of Tennessee stands today on the outskirts of that phase of modern education known as "big time football," and ahead lie the pitfalls of overemphasis, which have been avoided successfully in the past.

For two years now, Tennessee has been ranked among the nation's top gridiron powers, a sensational rise attributed largely to the coaching genius of Major Robert Reese Neyland, ex-army engineer.

The foes of Tennessee have been mostly southern teams of equal rank, but schedules have been liberally sprinkled with the little fellows.

However, there is a growing clamor from the public for Tennessee to schedule the strongest eastern and northern teams possible and to step into the big time with banners flying.

Knoxville likes major league football. It brings droves of people into the city on week-ends to jam the hotels and restaurants, a free-spirited throng that leaves behind thousands of dollars.

Major Neyland is the ringmaster of these week-end circuses, and on his shoulders rests the burden of satisfying the public without letting the University become an annex to the stadium.

President James D. Housh and Major Neyland have defended the so-called "powder puff" schedules as entirely adequate in providing entertainment for the public and for the physical welfare of the players.

Neyland's Great Record

But that has not satisfied the critics who vision Tennessee team on intercollegiate junkies, vying annually for the national championship.

Taking over a mediocre squad 13 years ago when transferred here from West Point for ROTC duty, Neyland immediately clicked as a coach. For seven straight years his teams lost only two games, while the other five seasons were marked only by tie games.

Last year he produced an unbeaten and untied team to win the Southeastern Conference championship, and experts believe this year's outfit is even stronger.

He became so engrossed in coaching after the 1935 season he resigned from the army and signed a five-year contract with Tennessee at a reported salary of $12,000.

After his great season last year the university extended his contract five years, with his salary reportedly up to $15,000.

Despite the growing popularity of Neyland's teams, the university and the athletic association did not jump overboard to build a huge bowl to accommodate clamoring fans. With WPA aid, the stadium was enlarged to seat 35,000 people, a modest arrangement compared to "big time" stadiums.

Team Has Drawing Power

Neyland said after the Alabama game, which Tennessee won 21-0, that he believed 75,000 tickets could have been sold had there been room. That means thousands of dollars lost and a jolt to the university's none-too-fat coffers.

Should Neyland's team get the Rose Bowl bid this year, Tennessee will be placed squarely in the center of the national spotlight.

A good many observers who have watched the cautious Major during the past 13 years believe he can step into the big time with his Volunteers and still maintain an even balance.

A tactful tactician, Neyland has succeeded in getting full cooperation from university officials with no outward trace of jealousy over his growing prestige—or the fact that his salary is considerably larger than those of faculty members.

May Act as Lever

Some believe, also, that football may act as a lever to shove the school into a better financial position, since the state of Tennessee stands in the lower bracket of states in the amount of money expended on education.

At any rate, Tennessee is in a position to "cash in" on football if a policy of expansion is adopted.

The great majority of students want "big-time" ball; the public is clamoring for it—and university officials are tolerant where football is concerned.

So don't be surprised if Tennessee's Volunteers begin playing to huge crowds in the east and north. The signs are pointing that way.

Crowd Is With Canzoneri In Fight Against Davis

By JOHN LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

New York, Oct. 30.—As a contribution to the future of the fight business, the battle this week between Tony Canzoneri, former world's featherweight and lightweight champion, and Al Davis, a smart young hitter from the reclaimed marshes of Brooklyn, will amount to nothing much unless Davis wins.

After all, the fight business has had the best of Canzoneri. The round-faced Italian is slowly burning out. He can't fight as he used to. He can't hit or box or move around as he used to. If he wins, it will simply postpone the end of a great fighter for a few months. Davis, on the other hand, in winning, may plant his foot on the road to fame and glory.

That is the practical aspect of this fight. But the practical aspect means little here, for Davis and his future are a couple of chips teetering upon the wave of popular feeling which follows Canzoneri.

Tony Fighting for Security

Tony is fighting for security. Tony is fighting to save his worldly possessions. Tony is fighting with his back to the wall. The watching crowd will know all this, and since fight crowds are highly emotional, this crowd will rise to the bait of tears-and-thunder as clearly as any promoter or writer of slogans could wish.

But I think there is something more than sentimentality in the feeling for Canzoneri. There's the memory of Tony's greatness. Before his eyes the crowd will see a man who was once the greatest fighter of his generation, still performing, still tracing the outlines of the art that made him great.

If a French soldier saw Bonaparte standing against the sky on his island of exile, in uniform, his hand in his coat, the soldier's feeling would be neither pitying nor sentimental. He would hear a trumpet, and feel as he did at Jena, Marengo, and Austerlitz.

Canzoneri is nothing but a former bookie with nice manners, hard-working and kind to women and children. He happened to be born, though, with a gift for fighting, and that is a gift which grips the public's imagination. The deep, full yell which greets the little bookie whenever he jumps into a prize ring and throws out his chest and cocks his eye at the enemy is something that must be heard before you can understand the spell that Canzoneri holds.

Tony May Be Nearly 34

This fellow with a face like a gargoyle's was born in the year—well, it's hard to be sure what year he was born in. Sammy Goldstein, his manager, informs me that the church records in the hamlet of Sidelid, La. give the date of Tony's origin as Nov. 6, 1908, which means that Mr. Canzoneri is crowding 31.

On the other hand, the older record books date him back to 1905. It's common practice among fighters to move their birth dates up as the years go by, and it would not surprise me if the earlier figure were correct, making Tony almost 34—a ripe old age for a prizefighter, especially a little prizefighter.

To cope with Al Davis, young, eager, and possessed of a damaging left-hand punch, Canzoneri must make his brain, instinct, and experience do double duty. Besides avoiding Davis's left he must feint the youth into many a right-hand counter-punch, for Tony's wallop no longer packs the old authority, and he'll have to keep hitting to get his man.

One of the features of Canzoneri's style is the fact that he doesn't guard his head with his hands. His arms swing at his sides, throwing the burden of defense on a bobbing head and a pair of agile legs. His margin of safety is remarkably slight. Even in his best days, the wild, swinging punches of the enemy never missed Tony by more than a couple of inches. He liked to play it close, to be on top of his man for the counter-blow.

They generally missed him in those days, but his legs are no longer as strong and flexible as formerly, which is apt to mean the difference between victory and defeat. Tony himself thinks his instinct is still sharp enough to protect him.

"I don't move around as much or as fast as I used to," he admits. "But listen, I can turn, duck, and shift on a dime. I know too much for this boy. I'm gonna beat him. I've got to."

That's the truth. Canzoneri has got to win this fight to earn further major matches and keep the wolf at bay. Few people think he can do it. Everybody hopes he can. And everybody knows he'll give a show, a Canzoneri show. Even in defeat and decline, your maiden aunt could spot this man for a great fighter.

Bedfast Grid Coach Inspires His Squad

Bellaire, O., Oct. 30 (AP)—Grid Coach Johnny "Butch" Niemec, Bedfast after an appendectomy, heard via telephone Saturday how Martins Ferry High School scored two touchdowns against his Bellaire team, gave his boys a pep talk through an assistant at the half and grinned broadly as they romped to a 18-13 victory to remain undefeated this season.

So don't be surprised if Tennessee's Volunteers begin playing to huge crowds in the east and north. The signs are pointing that way.

Michigan Takes Leaf from Book Of Brown Bomber

Crisler's Eleven Seems To Enjoy "Getting Things Done Quick"

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 30 (AP)—

In this game called football Michigan is taking a leaf from heavy-weight champion Joe Louis' book, and getting things over with, for all practical purposes, in the early rounds.

Risen now, through the smashing triumph over Yale, to an eminence previously uncertain for them because their victims had not all been considered top flight elevens, the Wolverines today were accepted high up among the nation's leaders. One reason was obvious.

Get In First Punch

Like their fellow Michiganders, the Brown Bomber, the walloping Wolverines get that first punch in—and, oh, how it hurts!—and then keep the foe on his heels until the ultimate decision has become a trifling formality.

That's the way it was with Yale Saturday, when Michigan won its fourth straight, 27 to 7. Three touchdowns in the first half for a 21-0 lead, big halftime advantage any Eli eleven ever permitted an opponent, and thereafter a sort of coasting style, with a taut defense.

The Yale game followed exactly the warfare methods of this hot Michigan team in three previous battles. Michigan State fell, 26 to 13, with all the Wolverine points arriving in the first half. Iowa succumbed, 27 to 7, with Michigan rushing over three touchdowns in the first half.

Even against hapless Chicago, it was like that. The Wolverines, in the 85-0 rout, counted 55 points in the initial 30 minutes. All told, in their four engagements the Wolverines have concentrated on the first half for 122 of their total 165 points.

Lots of Reserves

And supporters say that if a "pinch" should ever confront them in the second half, there should be plenty of power left to meet it. So far Michigan's reserves haven't been tested, but in event of emergency the Michigan enthusiasts, who are admiring Fritz Crisler's outfit more and more for its speed, poise and sheer strength, will look for the Wolverines to finish off the opposition in the manner of Champion Louis against Pastor; there was a delay there, but the end was the same.

With a big, fast charging line and a scintillating backfield, this first half business of Michigan's is simple on the face of it. Generally the drive starts with rookie Bob Westfall, sophomore fullback, shredding the opposing line. Then touchdowns Tom Harmon, fleet and agile, goes to work off the tackles and around the ends, pitching a pass here and there, and the story is ended.

To Set Date January 1 For Future "Specials"

Laurel, Md., Oct. 30 (AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt, president of the Maryland Jockey Club, announced today that henceforth the date of the Pimlico Special would be set each year on January 1 to avoid interference with stakes at other tracks.

The date for this year's Special, to be run Wednesday, wasn't announced until late in September. As a result, two or three "specialists"—Chalcedon and Kayak II—passed up the Washington Handicap at Laurel Saturday.

That caused some criticism of the adverse effect the Special had on other stakes with nearby dates. Announcement of the Special date on the first of the year would give the other tracks an opportunity to arrange their schedules without conflict.

Following the practice inaugurated this year, the conditions of each year's Special will not be announced until the Jockey club has taken a national poll to determine the race the public would like to see most.

Navy Sees Mistakes

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 30 (AP)—A grim-faced gang of Navy football men, determined to salvage the rest of their season after two defeats, were given a day off by Coach Swede Larson today to watch their mistakes in the Clemson game shown up by motion pictures.

The movies disclosed that Navy men had "set-up" shots at Shad Bryant, the Clemson ace who ran to the first touchdown, in his 40-yard romp, but missed their tackles cleanly.

The tell-tale pictures also showed Navy backs violated the first rule of pass defense in letting Mamee get behind them to take the leave for the second touchdown.

"Two perfect plays clocked perfectly, aided by our mistakes, and there was the ball game," Larson said.

Chet Lee, sub end, was the only Navy casualty in the Clemson game. His knee was twisted badly and he may be out of the Penn game at Philadelphia Saturday.

New Fighters Will Appear on Shamrock Card

Five Boys Will Be Making First Start in a Local Ring

When the leather starts flying at the Queen City hotel ballroom next Monday night at the Shamrock Athletic Club's boxing card, it will be marked by the appearance of several new faces to the squared circle.

Bill Niland, matchmaker for the Shamrock Club said last night he will call on Fred Hoyer and Bill Hoyer of Cumberland, Carl Arnold and Junior Day of Green Spring, W. Va., and Don Coughenour of Hyndman, Pa. These boys will be making their first starts in a local ring.

Fred Hoyer, 165 lbs., will take on "Don" Coughenour, 165 lbs., of Hyndman, Pa. "Junior" Day opposes Bill Hoyer in a battle of lightweight titles, and Carl Arnold 126 lbs. of Green Spring, W. Va., takes on "Smoky Joe" Niland, younger brother of "Bill" in one of the feature bouts of the evening.

Two other bouts have been made and three are to be made up this week. "Pete" Smith, Green Spring heavyweight takes on "Joe" Zellinski, Probstburg, in a bout scheduled for three rounds, and "Ferd" Franchi will get his chance for revenge when he faces the hard punching Dan Booth of Eckhart in another three-round bout.

Another bout, pending the acceptance of one of the principals, is the "Rugged Bill" Corbin and Delton Parker. This match, if Niland can swing it, promises to supply the fight fans in this vicinity with plenty of action.

The Probstburg Majestics lost two games to the Devon Club of Lake at Probstburg last week but retained their two-game margin in the Georges Creek Bowling League as Midland, previously tied for second with Piedmont, dropped three to Lonaconing at Coney and Piedmont lost two to Keyser on the latter's alleys.

Two new records were registered. "Tubby" Wilcox of the Devon Club scattered 581 pins to capture the set mark previously held by Jacobs of Probstburg, who spilled 559.

Lonaconing put a new single game record on the books when it knocked over 892. Probstburg held the old record of 852. Jacobs' 264 for one game and Probstburg's 2459 for the set withstood the barrage.

Harris starred for Probstburg with 552 while Wilcox stood out for Lake. They were the only ones to go over 500. The summaries:

Stocks Irregular As Traders Decide to Remain on Sidelines

Aircrafts, Steels, Rails and Coppers Get Mild Support

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—Speculative torpor gripped the stock market today and narrow price changes either way resulted in a virtual standstill.

A few aircrafts, with fractional gains, were the liveliest performers. Mild support at the finish enabled a handful of steels, mail orders, rails, coppers and motors to come out slightly ahead. Minor losses, though, were widely distributed when the final gong sounded.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was unchanged at 53.1. Transfers totalling 638,870 shares were the smallest for a full session in about two weeks.

Trimmed fractionally among curb shares were American Cyanamid

"B", Electric Bond & Share and Lockheed. Patchogue Plymouth mills gained two on odd-lot sales following a dividend announcement.

Turnover of 154,000 shares compared with 169,000 Friday.

West Virginia School Teachers Will Meet in Wheeling

Nationally Known Educators To Be On the Program

State Education Association Meeting Will Open Wednesday

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP)—Upwards of 6,000 men and women who administer education in West Virginia will start Wednesday to review past gains and chart new aims of the State Education Association.

Nationally known scholars, including Dr. Will Durant, will address the teachers, principals and superintendents at their seventy-fifth convention.

Executive Secretary R. B. Marston said attendance is not expected to equal immediate past conventions, because Wheeling is not as centrally located as recent host cities.

Membership sessions start Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after the delegate assembly, the association's governing body, has completed its work at caucuses Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

No New Candidate

Meanwhile, no new candidate had appeared today to challenge Mrs. Nelson O. Dick's succession to the presidency. The Charles Town high school instructor has been mentioned to succeed Virgil L. Flynn, Kanawha county school superintendent, precedent alternating the post between a man and woman.

The delegate assembly, said Marston, will be occupied primarily with revamping the association's legislative program, an assignment of the resolutions committee headed by G. William Ropp, of Martinsburg, who will report Wednesday night.

The list of legislative gains made since the last S. E. A. meeting includes retirement, tenure and free textbook programs, and the enactment of levy allocation recommendations.

Thursday afternoon the five component groups of the association will hold separate meetings, and Friday afternoon the delegates will be divided into twenty-seven groups according to grades and subjects they teach. General sessions are scheduled Thursday evening and Friday morning.

Dr. Bauer Will Speak

Durant and Willard E. Givens, Washington, secretary of the National Education Association, will address both group sessions Thursday afternoon and the general assembly that night.

Dr. W. W. Bauer, director of the Bureau of Health of the American Medical Association, and State School Superintendent W. W. Trent are on the program for Friday morning.

Scores of West Virginia and out-of-state educators will take part in technical discussions Friday afternoon.

Selected high school singers will comprise a West Virginia chorus of more than 200 voices to be heard Friday night.

Trent said today that schools throughout the state will be dismissed Thursday and Friday at the discretion of county boards of education. An unestimated number, particularly those nearest Wheeling, will observe the holiday.

Two Mountaineer Stars Will Not Face "Hoyas"

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP)—Prospects for a West Virginia University victory over Georgetown Saturday at Washington were dimmed considerably today when Coach Marshall Glenn disclosed two of his ace backfield men likely will be unable to play.

Charles Seabright, regular blocking back and punting star, and Don McCann, hard-running sophomore ball carrier, were injured in the 6-6 battle last week with South Carolina. Harry Clark, halfback star, has recovered from leg injuries and is expected to start.

The Mountaineers concentrated today on pass defense in preparation for aerial-minded Georgetown. The Hoyas are sporting one of the best forward passers in the east in Jules Koshlap, who tosses with either hand. The Washington outfit has two excellent receivers in Karcher, husky end, and McPadden, the team's field general.

Veterinaries Name Duke

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP)—The State Veterinary Medical Association elected Dr. Chy B. Duke of Charleston president today.

The group voted to meet in Charleston next April.

Other officers chosen were Dr. A. H. Neely of Elkinsville, first vice president; Dr. H. G. Cook of Moorefield, second vice president; Dr. W. L. Skaggs of Oak Hill, third vice president; and Dr. C. P. Crawford of Elkins, secretary-treasurer.

200 Cars Ordered

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP)—The Northern Pacific Railroad has ordered 200 hopper type cars, district manager R. W. Ward of the American Car and Foundry Company's Huntington plant announced today.

Ward said work on the cars would start after the plant fills a 500-car order for the Chesapeake and Ohio expected to take two months. The plant employs about 900 men.

MYSTERY UNSOLVED

Who was the hitch-hiker who was struck and killed by a truck in La Porte, Ind., Aug. 16, 1937? La Porte authorities want to know because on his person $10,000 in bills were found. There are two outstanding claims for the money. One contention is that the man was Richard Dabney Thaxton of Virginia, shown above, who vanished in 1935. Others claim he was Theodore Jock of Bad Axe, Mich. Lower photo shows the contents of the hitch-hiker's pockets—a notebook, billfold, watch and small purse.

Auxiliary Will Present Annual Mission Program

First Presbyterian Women of Keyser Announce Plans

Keyser, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP)—The Women's Auxiliary of the First Baptist church will give its annual home mission program, starting Wednesday and continuing through Sunday.

Three mornings group prayer meetings will be held. Wednesday groups will meet at the home of Mrs. S. B. Jeffries, Mrs. William McDonald and Miss Ida Unstot; Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Frank Hott, Mrs. Walter W. Hackett and Mrs. J. H. Phillips; and Friday morning at the home of Mrs. Murray C. Winters, Mrs. Parley Diehl and Mrs. A. V. Keyser.

Wednesday night at 7:30 a pageant taken from the mission study book, Chapels will be given in the Sunday school auditorium.

Sunday morning the five-day program will be closed with a sermon by the Rev. P. O. Sartelle, pastor of the home mission group of churches at Capon Bridge.

Selected high school singers will comprise a West Virginia chorus of more than 200 voices to be heard Friday night.

Trent said today that schools throughout the state will be dismissed Thursday and Friday at the discretion of county boards of education. An unestimated number, particularly those nearest Wheeling, will observe the holiday.

Lonaconing, Oct. 30 (AP)—Hallowe'en parties are occupying the attention of the younger set. A half a dozen or more are scheduled for tonight and tomorrow here and in the surrounding section.

One of the most important was the celebration today at the Ritchie building on West Main street, where fifty - three children were entertained by the Mother's Group, sponsors of the Lonaconing pre-school classes.

The children, all of whom attended the WPA supervised kindergarten daily, were gaily garbed and participated in a program which included solos, recitations and stunts. The entire room was decorated elaborately in keeping with the season. All of the decorations, including varied color leaves made of paper, goblins and witches were made in the pre-school by the children. Pumpkins furnished by parents of several of the children were laced by the children. Candles were laced in the pumpkins to reflect the light through the grinning faces by the supervisors.

Following the social hour refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and candies were enjoyed.

West Virginia School Teachers Will Meet in Wheeling

Nationally Known Educators To Be On the Program

State Education Association Meeting Will Open Wednesday

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Upwards of 6,000 men and women who administer education in West Virginia will start Wednesday to review past gains and chart new aims of the State Education Association.

Nationally known scholars, including Dr. Will Durant, will address the teachers, principals and superintendents at their seventy-fifth convention.

Executive Secretary R. B. Marston said attendance is not expected to equal immediate past conventions, because Wheeling is not as centrally located as recent host cities.

Membership sessions start Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after the delegate assembly, the association's governing body, has completed its work at caucuses Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

No New Candidate

Meanwhile, no new candidate had appeared today to challenge Mrs. Nelson O. Dick's succession to the presidency. The Charles Town high school instructor has been mentioned to succeed Virgil L. Flynn, Kanawha county school superintendent, precedent alternating the post between a man and woman.

The delegate assembly, said Marston, will be occupied primarily with revamping the association's legislative program, an assignment of the resolutions committee headed by G. William Ropp, of Martinsburg, who will report Wednesday night.

The list of legislative gains made since the last S. E. A. meeting includes retirement, tenure and free textbook programs, and the enactment of levy allocation recommendations.

Thursday afternoon the five component groups of the association will hold separate meetings, and Friday afternoon the delegates will be divided into twenty-seven groups according to grades and subjects they teach. General sessions are scheduled Thursday evening and Friday morning.

Dr. Bauer Will Speak

Durant and Willard E. Givens, Washington, secretary of the National Education Association, will address both group sessions Thursday afternoon and the general assembly that night.

Dr. W. W. Bauer, director of the Bureau of Health of the American Medical Association, and State School Superintendent W. W. Trent are on the program for Friday morning.

Scores of West Virginia and out-of-state educators will take part in technical discussions Friday afternoon.

Selected high school singers will comprise a West Virginia chorus of more than 200 voices to be heard Friday night.

Trent said today that schools throughout the state will be dismissed Thursday and Friday at the discretion of county boards of education. An unestimated number, particularly those nearest Wheeling, will observe the holiday.

Two Mountaineer Stars Will Not Face "Hoyas"

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 30.—Prospects for a West Virginia "University" victory over Georgetown Saturday at Washington were dimmed considerably today when Coach Marshall Glenn disclosed two of his ace backfield men likely will be unable to play.

Charley Seabright, regular blocking back and punting star, and Don McCann, hard-running sophomore ball carrier, were injured in the 6-6 battle last week with South Carolina. Harry Clark, halfback star, has recovered from leg injuries and is expected to start.

The Mountaineers concentrated today on pass defense in preparation for aerial-minded Georgetown. The Hoyas are sporting one of the best forward passers in the east in Jules Koshlap, who tosses with either hand. The Washington outfit has two excellent receivers in Karcher, husky end, and McPadden, the team's field general.

Hallowe'en Parties Held At Lonaconing

Students at Ritchie School Are Entertained by Mother's Group

Lonaconing, Oct. 30.—Hallowe'en parties are occupying the attention of the younger set. A half a dozen or more are scheduled for tonight and tomorrow here and in the surrounding section.

One of the most important was the celebration today at the Ritchie building on West Main street, where fifty - three children were entertained by the Mother's Group, sponsors of the Lonaconing pre-school classes.

The children, all of whom attended the WPA supervised kindergarten daily, were gaily garbed and participated in a program which included solos, recitations and stunts. Prior to the social activity at the Ritchie building the children marched up Main street, then returned. They were accompanied by Mrs. Katherine Freeman and Miss Nellie C. Meese, WPA recreation leaders and the Misses Isabel Moses, Nina Woods and Edna Custer, NYA assistants.

Norman Nightengale was awarded first prize in the "Cat's Tail" game while Tommy Schlereth proved he had practiced in taking a bite from an elusive apple as it dangled from a string. Joann Eagan opened the social program with a military tap dance.

The entire room was decorated elaborately in keeping with the season. All of the decorations, including varied color leaves made of paper, goblins and witches were made in the pre-school by the children. Pumpkins furnished by parents of several of the children were cut by the children. Candles were placed in the pumpkins to reflect the light through the grinning faces by the supervisors.

Following the social hour refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and candies were enjoyed.

Tuesday the children attending Barton and Pekin pre-schools will have their party. Barton children will leave the Barton high school at 10 a. m., and march over the main street before returning to the school for the program and refreshments. Pekin's entertainment will be in the afternoon.

Court Appoints Trustee To Aid Aged Hoarder

Widow Found Living In Poverty Has $16,664 in Cash

Circuit court today had assumed jurisdiction of the affairs of the aged North End woman who lived in virtual poverty while she hoarded thousands of dollars in bureau drawers and accepted assistance from kind hearted neighbors.

Associate Judge William A. Huster yesterday approved appointment of Charles R. Davis, plumbing and heating contractor, of 14 Marion street, as trustee for Mrs. Emma Hamilton, 81-year-old widow of 618 North Centre street.

Davis, a relative by marriage, is to file bond of $10,000, according to the court order.

Cash Assets Total $16,664

In the deed of trust filed for Mrs. Hamilton by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, her cash assets are said to total $16,664 and she is said, too, to have an interest in the property at 618-20 North Centre street.

The petition sets forth that Mrs. Hamilton is "no longer physically able to look after her property and take care of her estate" and adds, too, that "because of her physical condition due to her advanced age, she is no longer certain that she will be able to take care of herself."

The deed of trust gives Davis power of attorney and full authority to take charge of all the widow's property, to hold it in trust for her use and benefit, and to pay all necessary expenses, including employment of a housekeeper and nursing and medical costs if needed.

Woman Wants to Return Home

Mrs. Hamilton's circumstances were discovered by social service workers two weeks ago when she suffered injuries in the third in a series of falls and had to be taken to Allegany hospital.

She has since been released from the hospital and has been living at the Davis home. But, according to the petition filed yesterday, she desires to return to her home on North Centre street, where apparently she will be cared for by a housekeeper and possibly a nurse.

The deed names Attorney Ryan as trustee in event of the disability of Davis to serve.

Accepting the trust, Davis agreed to submit each year a "full and itemized account" of all expenditures.

Community Band Makes Progress

Several New Players Join, But More Needed

Gratifying response to the recent appeal for instrument players in the high school alumni community orchestra is reported by Victor H. Baumann, music instructor at Fort Hill high school, its leader.

Several new players reported at the last rehearsal, bringing the organization further along the road to the balanced number sought. There is still need for two more viola players, another violinist player and a string bass player. Baumann hopes these will soon be forthcoming.

At an experiment, the rehearsal a week ago last Wednesday was held in the City hall auditorium in the belief that it would be more convenient for the members. While the place did prove convenient, there were other serious handicaps, the acoustics of the auditorium not being suitable for one thing, but the worst handicap was the lack of any parking spaces within several blocks of the building. The latter fact offset the convenience of location.

Future rehearsals will be held in the music room of Fort Hill high school. Plenty of parking space is available there. The next rehearsal will be held at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, and Baumann hopes there will be a good turnout at that time.

The orchestra is being sponsored by the local Rotary club, the objective being to build up a distinctive community group which may develop into a symphony orchestra of note.

Jury Upholds Right Of Landlord To Sell Tenant's Furniture

An Oldtown landlord acted legally when he evicted a tenant and sold his furniture for non-payment of rent, a Circuit court jury ruled yesterday afternoon as it denied the tenant's claim for damages.

The jury deliberated almost two hours before bringing in a verdict denying Edward Carder, a WPA worker, damages against Lee P. Deen.

Carder, represented by Attorney Charles G. Watson, claimed that Deen had sold his belongings in an irregular manner and asked actual damages of $150 and punitive damages as well.

The defense, conducted by Attorney P. Brooke Whiting, produced evidence, however, to show that the sale was held by a constable under a distress for rent issued by a magistrate, all in strict accordance with the law.

The case, involving back rent totaling $20, took up virtually the entire court day and did not go to the jury until about 4:15 p. m.

One Man Gets 101 Days in Jail, Another Only 50 for Same Fines

500 Hunting Licenses Issued in Late Rush

The last-minute rush for hunting licenses got underway yesterday with a vengeance, as courthouse clerks feared it would despite warnings earlier in the month.

The office of Court Clerk Robert Jackson was crowded most of the day by would-be nimrods who had failed to apply for their licenses until just two days before the season opens.

Extra clerks were pressed into service to meet the demand, and nearly 500 licenses, most of them county licenses, were issued during the day. There was a sprinkling of statewide licenses, however, and one or two non-resident.

Clerks wearily anticipate an even greater rush today. Hunting season opens at dawn tomorrow.

Trapped Despite Crossing River

A Cumberland man today faced charges of drunken driving and possession of untaxed liquor due to the bulldog chase of two Cumberland policemen and the cooperation of Ridgeley Police Chief C. V. Barnard.

When Officers John W. Smallwood and Frank A. Shober, Jr., spied a truck zigzagging on Green street Sunday afternoon, they set out in pursuit.

The truck driver speeded up, crossed Blue Bridge into Ridgeley, and then came to a stop several blocks beyond.

The two officers followed the truck driver into West Virginia. But the driver, John P. Twigg, 300 block Broadway, and two companions, refused to come back to Maryland.

The officers then got in touch with Chief Barnard who held the driver. Two companions, Bernice Weise, 500 block Virginia avenue, and E. R. Smith of Keyser, were charged with being drunk. The latter were fined $10 each yesterday by Magistrate C. A. Jewell, in Ridgeley.

Twigg, charged with drunk driving and possession of untaxed liquor will be given a hearing at 10 a. m. today before Magistrate Jewell, Chief Barnard said.

15 Fundamentals For Road Safety

Safety Committee Approves List

Approval of fifteen fundamental rules for safe and sane driving, compiled by safety experts, was announced yesterday by Governor O'Connor's safety committee for Allegany county through its chairman, John J. McMullen.

In the campaign that is being conducted throughout the state by Governor O'Connor and his safety committee, the co-operation of every driver must be enlisted, it was stated. It must be recognized that a car, no matter how modern, is only as safe as the driver at the wheel, the committee declared.

Here are the fifteen rules for safe driving urged by the committee:

1. Make a habit of safe-driving practices until they become second nature to you.

2. Always be patient while at the wheel. Impatience only leads one into taking chances.

3. Always be alert and attentive while at the wheel. A split second of inattention may cost you a lifetime of regret.

4. Keep a sharp lookout when approaching intersections or parked cars. A pedestrian, or another car, may suddenly appear.

5. Avoid cutting in and out through traffic. A car is not like a broken field runner in football.

6. Always allow ample space between your car and the car ahead. Also don't let a car behind you come too close, especially if it is a heavily laden truck.

7. Be sure that you are in good physical condition when you drive. Remember that fatigue handicaps your driving abilities and slows your reactions, while alcohol tends to impair your judgment.

8. Always use hand signals so that other drivers may know what you are planning to do next.

9. Always grant the other fellow his right-of-way—but never fight for your own.

10. Pass other vehicles only when the road is straight and clear ahead, and you are sure that you will have ample time to get by. Passing on curves and hills can be fatal.

11. Always regulate your speed according to driving conditions. Under certain conditions, twenty-five miles an hour may be excessive.

12. Remember that high speeds are doubly wearing—on the car and on the driver. Always reduce speeds after sun-down or when visibility is poor.

13. Keep your car mechanically safe—your brakes, tires and other mechanical parts in good running condition.

14. Study and obey the rules of the road. They are made for your protection.

15. Always drive so that you set a good example in highway courtesy.

Model Airplane Meet Sponsored By Exchangers

Competition Slated For Fort Hill Field Saturday, Dec. 2

The Exchange club today had completed plans for Cumberland's first city-wide model airplane meet. Club officers announced last night that the event will be staged at Fort Hill high school stadium Saturday, Dec. 2.

Four competitive classes are scheduled as follows:

Junior event—Limited to persons under 16 years of age.

Senior event—Limited to persons between 16 and 21 years of age.

Open event—No limit as to age. Contestants in junior and senior events may also compete in this class.

Special Gas Model Event—No limit as to age, but six or more entries must be made to insure its being held.

Cash prizes are to be awarded for first, second and third places in each event.

Entry blanks may be obtained from principals of all schools, public and parochial, in the city; from leaders of Boy Scout troops; or by writing Dr. Frank E. Stamp, chairman of the committee in charge, 136 Virginia avenue.

Entry blanks for the rubber-powered classes should be returned to Dr. Stamp any time before the opening of the meet, but entrants in the gas-powered class must submit their blanks at least one week in advance.

Special rules will govern the gas model competition, and these may be secured by writing to Dr. Stamp.

Point System for Judging

All models will be judged on a point system as follows:

Neatness of workmanship, 10 points; amount of detail, 10 points; originality in reproduction of parts, 10 points; color and finish, 10 points and average flight time, 60 points.

The rules put no restriction on the design of the models except to provide that they must drop no part while in flight. They also stipulate that builders must fly their own models and permit each contestant to enter a maximum of three models in each event.

Mayor Serenaded On Birthday

City Council Sings Song in His Office

City Hall yesterday assumed all the characteristics of a Walt Disney cartoon for a few brief moments.

It might be "Old King Cole." Anyway, the four city commissioners tripped into Mayor Harry Irvine's office yesterday morning, curtsied prettily, and then rendered "Happy birthday to you, dear mayor."

His honor was 66 yesterday. The event was fittingly celebrated. Decorative festoons adorned the mayoral office in honor of the event. Congratulations, as well as flowers, were showered on the smiling mayor.

Last night, a reporter met the mayor leaving City Hall with a pot of flowers in each hand.

"I'm going to take these home to the Mrs.," the mayor observed with a broad grin.

Pedestrian Suffers Cuts and Bruises

A 26-year-old service station attendant was reported in "good" condition last night at Memorial hospital where he was admitted after being struck by an automobile.

George Winterstein, of Wiley Ford, W. Va., was cut and bruised about the body yesterday morning when he was struck by the car driven by Kenneth Matthews, also of Wiley Ford.

No charges were placed against Matthews.

Mayor Tells Inquisitive Students City Has No 'Stooge' Government

An inquiry by Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday revealed that the two schoolgirls seen peeking in his office door were after information.

When summoned into the office, the two girls said they were ninth grade history students at Fort Hill High School and would like to pose a question if the mayor would be so kind.

Whereupon the mayor smiled amiably and said to fire away.

"What we are trying to find out is the difference between an invisible and visible government," Ninth Grader Dot, staid Billmyer, 216 Cecilia street, stated.

The mayor then declared that invisible governments are very bad and that a visible government, like the one in Cumberland, is a good thing.

Sometimes ward heels and other people who don't have the nerve of things," the mayor explained. "When this happens a city has an invisible form of government where

Restitution Not Ordered

The terms of the parole do not require Beckman to make restitution of the amount taken, which Judge Sloan said could be inferred to exceed its specific sum that formed the basis for the indictment.

A suspended sentence of two years was granted Frank Mayhew after he was found guilty on an appeal of decision and non-support of his six minor children.

Associate Judge William A. Huster upheld Mayhew's conviction in Juvenile court on the charge, but suspended sentence.

Warn Against Drink

The defendant, represented by Attorney William L. Wilson, Jr., had been seen to support his family while first tried in Juvenile court and then had been sentenced to a year in the House of Correction when he was later convicted of failing to comply with the order.

Judge Huster warned the man to support his family and to abstain from intoxicants unless he wanted the sentence to take effect.

The man convicted as a parole violator was George Stafford, Judge Huster ordered him committed to the House of Correction for a year after being testimony that he had been drunk and disorderly in violation of the terms of his parole.

Court records also revealed yesterday the elderly Milton Hoff was placed on probation last week for two years on a serious morals charge.

Hoff was convicted by a jury of contributing to the delinquency of a youngster.

Court Appoints Trustee To Aid Aged Hoarder

Widow Found Living In Poverty Has $16,664 in Cash

Circuit court today had assumed jurisdiction of the affairs of the aged North End woman who lived in virtual poverty while she hoarded thousands of dollars in bureau drawers and accepted assistance from kind hearted neighbors.

Associate Judge William A. Huster yesterday approved appointment of Charles R. Davis, plumbing and heating contractor, of 14 Marion street, as trustee for Mrs. Emma Hamilton, 81-year-old widow of 618 North Centre street.

Davis a relative by marriage, is to file bond of $10,000, according to the court order.

Cash Assets Total $16,664

In the deed of trust filed for Mrs. Hamilton by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, her cash assets are said to total $16,664 and she is said, too, to have an interest in the property at 618-20 North Centre street.

Woman Wants to Return Home

Mrs. Hamilton's circumstances were discovered by social service workers two weeks ago when she suffered injuries in the third in a series of falls and had to be taken to Allegheny hospital.

She has since been released from the hospital and has been living at the Davis home. But, according to the petition filed yesterday, she desires to return to her home on North Centre street, where apparently she will be cared for by a housekeeper and possibly a nurse.

The deed names Attorney Ryan as trustee in event of the disability of Davis to serve.

Accepting the trust, Davis agreed to submit each year a "full and itemized account" of all expenditures.

The chorus of "When the Moon Comes over the Mountain," swelled like a sail as a deep-throated chorus, reminiscent of the Don Cossacks, provided background for the thrush.

The background was supplied by members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

What were they doing in a bungalow on Bedford road? Well, the boys were supposed to be in a parade at Frostburg. But it rained. So the boys repaired to Mr. Rizer's bungalow.

15 Fundamentals For Road Safety

Safety Committee Approves List

Approval of fifteen fundamental rules for safe and sane driving, compiled by safety experts, was announced yesterday by Governor O'Connor's safety committee for Allegheny county through its chairman, John J. McMullen.

In the campaign that is being conducted throughout the state by Governor O'Connor and his safety committee, the co-operation of every driver must be enlisted, it was stated. It must be recognized that a car, no matter how modern, is only as safe as the driver at the wheel, the committee declared.

Here are the fifteen rules for safe driving urged by the committee:

1. Make a habit of safe-driving practices until they become second nature to you.
2. Always be patient while at the wheel. Impatience only leads one into taking chances.
3. Always be alert and attentive while at the wheel. A split second of inattention may cost you a lifetime of regret.
4. Keep a sharp lookout when approaching intersections or parked cars. A pedestrian, or another car, may suddenly appear.
5. Avoid cutting in and out through traffic. A car is not like a broken field runner in football.
6. Always allow ample space between your car and the car ahead. Also don't let a car behind you come too close, especially if it is a heavily laden truck.
7. Be sure that you are in good physical condition when you drive. Remember that fatigue handicaps your driving abilities and slows your reactions, while alcohol tends to impair your judgment.
8. Always use hand signals so that other drivers may know what you are planning to do next.
9. Always grant the other fellow his right-of-way—but never fight for your own.
10. Pass other vehicles only when the road is straight and clear ahead, and you are sure that you will have ample time to get by. Passing on curves and hills can be fatal.
11. Always regulate your speed according to driving conditions. Under certain conditions, twenty-five miles an hour may be safe yet in other situations, twenty-five miles an hour may be excessive.
12. Remember that high speeds are doubly wearing—on the car and on the driver. Always reduce speeds after sundown or when visibility is poor.
13. Keep your car mechanically safe—your brakes, tires and other mechanical parts in good running condition.
14. Study and obey the rules of the road. They are made for your protection.
15. Always drive so that you set a good example in highway courtesy.

Mayor Serenaded On Birthday

City Council Sings Song in His Office

City Hall yesterday assumed all the characteristics of a Walt Disney cartoon for a few brief moments.

It might be termed "Old King Cole." Anyway, the four city commissioners tripped into Mayor Harry Irvine's office yesterday morning, curtsied prettily, and then rendered "Happy birthday to you, dear mayor," etc.

His honor was 66 yesterday.

The event was fittingly celebrated. Decorative festoons adorned the mayor's office in honor of the event. Congratulations, as well as flowers, were showered on the smiling mayor.

Last night, a reporter met the mayor leaving City Hall with a pot of flowers in each hand.

"I'm going to take these home to the Mrs.," the mayor observed with a broad grin.
